

Cyprus In Upheaval

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The Cypriot National Guard, seeking union with Greece, forced President Makarios from power Monday and plunged the Mediterranean island republic into civil strife.

The rebels claimed Makarios had been killed in the coup, but a United Nations spokesman in New York said late Monday that the British district commander in the town of Paphos had seen Makarios alive.

Makarios asked to arrange a meeting with higher U.N. officials, a British official at U.N. headquarters said.

Britain is one of eight countries participating in the multinational U.N. peacekeeping force on Cyprus.

Pooled news dispatches said earlier that the 61-year-old archbishop broadcast an appeal to the Cypriot people "to resist and fight."

Fighting was reported in Nicosia, Limassol and other cities between Makarios' national police forces and the National Guard.

The reports said the military coup had been preceded by a massive police crackdown on members of the EOKA-B, the clandestine Greek Cypriot organization sworn to "enosis" — unity of Cyprus with Greece.

More than 200 suspects were reportedly detained before the National Guard, led by officers of the Greek army, rolled tanks into the streets.

The National Guard announced the coup in an early morning broadcast and said Makarios had been replaced by Nikos Sampson, a 39-year-old former Greek resistance leader.

Sampson promised elections within a year, declaring: "Unity and tranquility will now be restored among the Greek-Cypriot people in the army."

Fighting subsided Monday night and citizens were warned to stay in their homes. Ambulances and military vehicles raced through empty streets during the night.

In New York, the Cyprus ambassador to the United Nations said he had received a message through U.N. channels purporting to be a request from Makarios for an urgent session of the Security Council.

At the Western White House, a spokesman said President Nixon was informed of the Cyprus developments by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who telephoned from Washington.

Kissinger met with the Cypriot ambassador Monday morning.

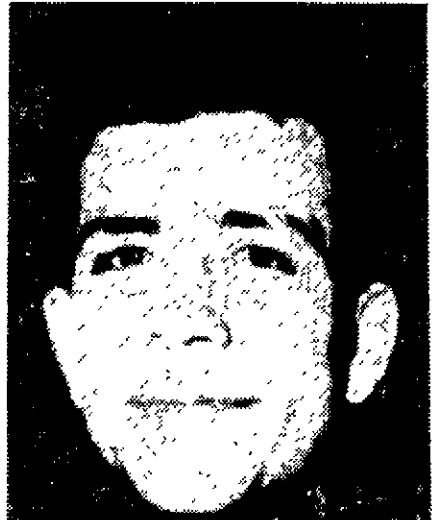

The Soviet Union, through its official news agency Tass, expressed support for Makarios. Tass said the Soviet government saw the coup as "acts openly violating the U.N. charter," and observers said this could be preparation for a council summons.

One U.N. source explained the apparent lack of movement by the U.N. peacekeeping force on Cyprus, saying the crisis appeared so far to be an internal clash between Greek Cypriots. The 2,400-man U.N. force is responsible for keeping peace between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Makarios, who had been president of Cyprus since the island declared its independence 14 years ago, had demanded in a letter to Greek President Phaedon Gtzis earlier this month that Greece recall the 650 Greek army officers who command the National Guard.

Union with Greece, or enosis, had once been an early goal of Makarios as well, but he abandoned it in favor of an independent Cyprus because of the bitter opposition to enosis by the island's Turkish population.

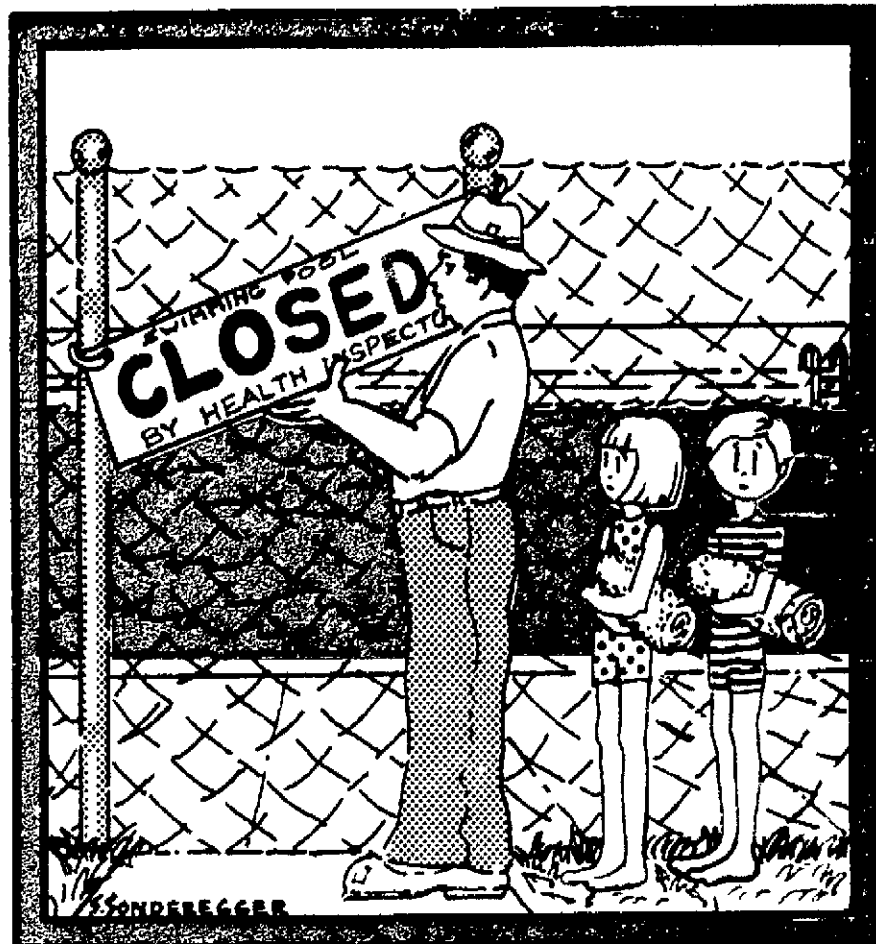

Cyprus won independence from Britain in 1960 after five years of bitter guerrilla warfare led by Makarios.

Is The Pool Pure?

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Have you ever balanced on the tip of a diving board, about to take a cool plunge, and wondered if the water down below was really fit to swim in?

Chances are pretty good it is. But if it isn't, the persons responsible for pool maintenance will have some explaining and extra work to do when the health inspector comes around.

According to Jerry Hood of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department, inspectors check more than 70 pools in the Lincoln area an average of once a week during the peak summer season.

Careful Scrutiny

All municipal, university, apartment complex, hotel and motel pools come under careful scrutiny as the inspector runs down a list of about 30 possible violations.

Only private backyard pools are exempt.

In 1972, 494 checks were made of Lincoln pools, Hood said.

Last year the inspectors chalked up 342 violations, including 86 for chlorine deficiencies, 59 for irregular pH factors, 33 for unsanitary pool water conditions and 15 for improper lifesaving equipment.

For any of those offenses, the inspector generally orders the manager to close the pool until conditions are brought up to standard.

Chlorine Content

The chlorine content of the water has to be more than .4 parts per million

(ppm) Hood explained. Chlorine is added to protect swimmers from water-borne residuals and to prevent algae from growing.

A pool's pH, the measure of acidity or alkalinity of the water, should range from 7.2 to 7.6, which is on the basic side, he said. Neutral solutions are numerically equal to 7.0.

"We always try to keep the water basic," he said. "If it's acid, the chlorine in the water can cause high eye and skin irritation."

Water Clarity

Hood said the pool inspectors test water clarity by dropping a red and black disc in the deepest end of the pool. If the disc can't be seen from the edge, the pool is closed until the water clears up.

Jack Daniel, assistant director with the State Division of Environmental Health, said inspectors closed a total of 112 pools last year because they couldn't meet regulations.

He said eight state inspectors, along with inspectors from local health departments in the Grand Island, Hastings, Kearney, North Platte, Scottsbluff and Lincoln areas, check about 700 swimming pools throughout the state.

"We try to hit each pool at least twice a summer," he said. "If it's a problem pool where we've found a lot of violations in the past, we'll check it more often until we get it cleaned up."

Wide Variety Of Strikes Reported Across Country

By The Associated Press

Public employees in Ohio vowed Monday to extend their strikes against prisons and mental health facilities, and a walkout by some 1,600 mechanics forced cancellation of all National Airlines flights.

A wide variety of strikes across the nation cut public services and interfered with private industry during the day as a quarter-million workers were reported off the job in 603 separate strikes.

The Federal Mediation Service in Washington said there were 593 strikes involving 255,000 workers nationally last week, the largest number of strikes in the post-World War II era.

But a spokesman said the number of workers was not a record because many of the strikes were small.

Progress in some labor disputes was reported Monday:

— About 3,000 garbage men and other city workers in Baltimore agreed to end a two-week walkout, and a tentative agreement was announced Monday night in a separate four-day strike by about 600 police officers. Striking police were not expected back on their beats until after a ratification vote Tuesday, union officials said.

— Kennecott Copper Co., one of four copper producers struck early Monday by a 26-union coalition, reached a tentative settlement with its employees Monday afternoon. Union officials said the agreement could pave the way for settlement with the other three firms.

— A tentative agreement was reached in the 121-day-old strike at Dow Chemical Co.'s facilities in Midland, Mich. The strike by 5,300 United Steelworkers has been marked by violence and numerous arrests of pickets. Details of the agreement were not released.

— In Ebensburg, Pa., about 700 striking coal miners returned to work Monday after settlement of a dispute that began Thursday over the location of showers for three women miners at Bethlehem Mine Co.'s No. 3 mine.

However, several major strikes continued.

— National Airlines said all 155 of its flights to 45 American cities and London had been canceled until 6 a.m. Tuesday because of a strike by the International Association of Machinists. A company spokesman said the strike could cost the airline $1 million a day in operating revenues.

— Ohio's state government was threatened with a massive shutdown by some of its blue-collar workers Tuesday after a 7,000-member union voted to strike at midnight. Several thousand prison guards and blue-collar workers have been out since July 6 in a wage dispute.

In the copper strike, a spokesman for the 26 unions involved said the preliminary accord with the nation's No. 1 copper producer was subject to ratification by a steering committee. He said picket lines will stand until midnight Sunday — the date the tentative agreement calls for the strike to end.

"Kennecott is the industry bellwether and we hope the others come forth with suitable offers as a result," said spokesman Cass Alvin. "I think there's reason to hope this may turn out to be the shortest copper industry strike in history."

A strike in 1971 shut down copper operations for seven weeks and workers were off their jobs for eight months during a strike in 1968.

The Ohio strikers — prison guards and blue collar workers — belong to three unions: the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association and the Teamsters.

The walkouts, which began July 6, started without union approval. The Teamsters, with 2,600 state employees, sanctioned the strikes over the weekend, but the civil service group, representing 21,000 workers, urged its members to stay on the job.

Deputies said the youth apparently had been riding his motorcycle along the creek sometime Sunday night, lost control and went over a 65-foot drop off.

The body was discovered by two women bicycling in the area. The victim was identified as Robert Willmer Vollmer, of McLaughlin, S.D. He had been staying with his brother in Lincoln.

Goldsberry Enters 'Not Guilty' Plea

Eighteen-year-old Mark Alan Goldsberry pleaded innocent Monday in Lancaster County District Court in connection with the Nov. 15, 1973, death of Wendy Hile, 15.

District Judge William Blue said the trial would be conducted during the next jury session, which will begin July 29. Although he did not specify a date, Judge Blue said the trial would be held "as soon as the schedule permits."

Goldsberry, who was accompanied by Lincoln attorney Paul Galter, remained calm throughout the brief proceedings.

Also present at the arraignment were Goldsberry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Goldsberry of 1611 N. 83rd.

Specifically, the Northeast High School senior is charged with killing Miss Hile "feloniously, purposely and of his own deliberate and premeditated malice."

Miss Hile, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hile of 6222 Holdrege, disappeared Nov. 15 after she had left home for school. There were few leads in the case until parts of a decomposed body, later identified as Miss Hile, were found Jan. 31 by a farmer near Table Rock.

Earlier this spring, Judge Blue denied a motion by Goldsberry's attorney to suppress all oral or written statements made by Goldsberry on Feb. 18 to law enforcement officers and the county attorney.

Lincoln police detectives have testified that they did not read Goldsberry his rights until about three hours after he had been contacted at his home and taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Catholic League Calls Booklet 'Libel'

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights is preparing to file suit against the Xerox Corp. for alleged anti-Catholic statements contained in a booklet published by one of its subsidiaries for high school use, according to the group's executive director, Stuart D. Hubbell.

The Lincoln Public Schools uses the booklet, entitled "Population Control," as a supplementary textbook.

Hubbell, of Traverse City, Mich., charges that the booklet suggests, in its own words, that the Catholic Church be brought "before a world court or another international tribunal to be tried for crimes against humanity" because of the church's birth control stand.

He also asserts the booklet defames Pope Paul VI by falsely accusing him of sanctioning, in the words of a petition signed by 3,000 unnamed scientists, "the deaths of countless numbers of human beings with his misguided and immoral Encyclical (Humanae Vitae)" on the regulation of birth.

Parents Complain

An attorney, Hubbell said in a news release that parents of public school children in Birmingham, Mich.; St. Louis; Dade County, Fla., and Lincoln have complained to the League about the booklet. The League with headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis., defends civil rights of Catholics and other minorities.

Hubbell said the pending suit against Xerox will be filed in Michigan and will name as defendants the Michigan State Board of Education and the Birmingham public school board.

In a May 9 letter to Public Schools Supt. John Prash, Fr. James D. Dawson, Lincoln Catholic schools superintendent, inquired about the booklet, saying some parents had complained to him about its use.

Prash replied that the booklet is part of the Harvard Social Studies Project series on current public issues, available for secondary teachers' optional use.

"It is not provided in quantities for general distribution to all students," Prash said; rather, it is "considered a resource material" with most probable use in senior high modern problems courses.

Obligation To Be Balanced

He said although the schools "have an obligation to present a balanced point of view with respect to any controversial issue, we also feel it is important for students to deal directly with public issues when appropriate to the course content."

Ron Brandt, public schools associate superintendent for instruction, said the booklet reflects pro and con statements "in a very strong kind of fashion" that is "designed to stimulate controversy and conversation."

"We've received no formal complaints that I'm aware of," Brandt said, adding, "We have no reason to think we shouldn't continue to use it."

Brandt said although he thinks the editors of the booklet "attempted to be objective," he acknowledged that "it's hard to be (objective) on a matter as serious to the world as this." He said each person's view of it will be different.

'Malicious Libel'

Hubbell, on behalf of the Catholic League, charges that statements in the booklet, particularly in a chapter entitled, "The Pope's View on Birth Control," constitute "a deliberate and malicious libel on Catholics."

Not noted in Hubbell's statement is the fact that the booklet is made up of eight short articles, reprinted from such sources as United Nations publications, U.S. News & World Report, the Sierra Club Bulletin, the National Observer and the New York Times.

In a preface, the booklet (supplied The Star by the public schools) challenges the reader "to develop your own positions" based on the material presented "and to resolve conflicting views that face citizens in a free society."

Henley Guilty In 6 Sex Killings

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) —

Elmer Wayne Henley, a high school dropout, was found guilty Monday of murder in six deaths in a homosexual torture ring in which 27 youths were killed.

The jury of six women and six men found the 18-year-old Henley guilty an hour after receiving the case. Half an hour later the guilty verdicts were read.

Twenty-five prosecution witnesses and no defense witnesses were heard during the week of testimony. During the two hours of closing statements, the prosecution's descriptions were so vivid that the mother of one of the victims fled from the courtroom screaming.

In addition, the jury had Henley's written statement and physical evidence which included a sex device and a so-called "torture board."

The panel considered six murder indictments against

Elmer Wayne Henley

Henley, who has been jailed since the first bodies of Houston area youths were exhumed last August.

The state is prepared to ask for a 99-year prison term for Henley. The defense has indicated it hopes the jury will consider rehabilitation possibilities in a 10-to 15-year prison term for Henley, whose mother says he wants to do religious work.

Henley, his mother, 35-year-old Mary Henley, and his three brothers sat motionless in the courtroom as clerk Mildred Voelkel read the six guilty verdicts.

As the last verdict was read, Mrs. Henley broke into sobs and cried quietly. Her mother, Christine Weed, sat dry-eyed until the verdict was over, then rushed crying from the courtroom.

Then Henley was taken from the courtroom, surrounded by bury deputies.

Mrs. Henley, her face flushed, said between sobs, "It's what I expected. Do you think it's fair?" Then she answered her own question, "No, it wasn't fair. We'll wait here for the sentencing and then we'll start our appeals."

News Announcer Dies After Live Shooting

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "In keeping with Channel 40's policy of bringing you the latest in blood and guts and in living color you are going to see another first — attempted suicide."

With that startling announcement, Chris Chubbuck put a gun to her head and fatally shot herself as her half-hour morning talk show was being broadcast live by WXLTV-TV.

The attractive, 30-year-old television personality died Monday night in Sarasota Memorial Hospital, nearly 14 hours after the shooting.

"She passed away at 11:15," a hospital spokesman said.

Station officials said Miss Chubbuck, host of the ABC affiliate's "Suncoast Digest," was reading a news report about a shootout at a bar when mechanical trouble developed with a film clip.

There were a few seconds of dead air. Then the camera switched back to Miss Chubbuck, who calmly read a statement announcing her planned suicide attempt.

"Her demeanor was cool and collected," news director Mike Simmons said.

She reached into a shopping bag behind the horseshoe-shaped news desk, pulled out a .38-caliber revolver, fired a single shot, and slumped forward.

Blood splattered onto a carpet beneath her chair and stained notes on her desk.

The screen went black, then the station continued broadcasting with public service programming.

A Sarasota County sheriff's deputy said the shot was quite audible over the television broadcast.

"They cut the cameras as soon as they realized what happened ... It happened so fast," he said. Simmons said: "It took less than a second to get the gun to her head and pull the trigger."

He said Miss Chubbuck joked about buying a gun only a week ago and told a coworker: "Wouldn't it be neat if I were to take the gun, pull it out on the air, live and in living color, and blow myself away."

Chris Chubbuck

"He never realized she was dead serious," Simmons said. "Everyone is in a state of shock," said Ted Eleston, station sales manager.

Described by a coworker as "the sparkplug of the office," Miss Chubbuck was a dynamic self-starter who never complained about a 12-hour work day and recently was promoted to public affairs director for WXLTV-TV.

White House Asks OEO Head To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House on Monday demanded the resignation of Alvin J. Arnett as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, the besieged command post of the remnants of the war on poverty.

In telephone interview with The Associated Press, Arnett said, "They have asked for a resignation; I will deliver it tomorrow."

Arnett said the resignation, to become effective July 31, was requested in a meeting at the White House with presidential counselor Dean Burch.

Arnett, who succeeded Howard Phillips a year ago as head of OEO, said that about a month ago "I was told the President does not want OEO. Rightly or wrongly you have been accused of attempting to preserve the programs."

"If the accusation is that I have attempted to preserve those programs, I plead guilty," Arnett told an interviewer.

A former head of the Appalachian Regional Commission, Arnett has lobbied in Congress for passage of a pending bill that would preserve OEO as an independent agency. The agency, created as the command post of President Lyndon B. Johnson's war on poverty, will be ten years old in August.

President Nixon has refused to request funds for OE in his budget. The agency currently is operating on a continuing resolution which maintains its funding until Sept. 30, at a level comparable to its last appropriation which was $330 million for the entire year.

Many OEO programs have been transferred to other agencies and departments, but federal support for the often controversial Community Action programs would end with closure of OEO.

Pending now in the Senate is a bill to transfer Community Action to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. A similar bill passed the House last May 29 by a vote of 331 to 53.

Crime Surge Highest In South, Suburbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's crime rate surged in the first quarter of 1974, with the largest increase occurring in the suburbs and in the South, the FBI reported Monday.

Statistics based on reports from state and local police agencies showed that the crime rate for the first three months of this year was 15 per cent higher than for the same period a year ago.

During the final three months of 1973, crime rose 16 per cent according to the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports. The figures are not considered a totally accurate measurement of crime because police agencies use varying reporting methods.

The crime rate increase for the six months was a return to the trend maintained for 17 years until the rate dropped to 4 per cent for 1972 and held steady during the first nine months of 1973.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said the new figures "provide no clues as to what is causing the upsurge in crime, other than in what areas of the country the increases are occurring."

The figures showed that crime rose 9 per cent in northeastern and north central states, 17 per cent in western states and 23 per cent in the South.

Police in Columbia, S.C., Charlotte, N.C., Knoxville and Memphis, Tenn., and Columbus, Savannah and Macon, Ga., all said the increase probably was due to better reporting.

But in New Orleans, a police spokesman said a lack of money for police overtime probably had a bearing on that city's jump from 8,863 crimes during the first quarter of 1973 to 9,152 for the comparable period this year.

The FBI statistics measure the number of seven crimes: rape, robbery, assault, murder, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft.

The largest increase was 19 per cent for larceny, followed by 15 per cent for burglary, 10 per cent for rape, 7 per cent each for murder and assault, 5 per cent for vehicle theft and 1 per cent for robbery.

Communities of less than 10,000 reflected the biggest increase of any population category, 29 per cent over-all and 33 per cent for murder, 32 per cent for burglary and barely less than that for the other crimes.

Colson: Nixon OKd 'Operation' In Kissinger's Favor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said on Monday that he had been told that President Nixon once said he had approved "the operation" in connection with Daniel Ellsberg — but Colson said he did not know what operation was meant.

"It doesn't necessarily mean a burglary," Colson told newsmen during a dinner break from his closed-door testimony to the House impeachment inquiry. Colson's testimony prompted confusion among the House Judiciary Committee members.

Some said they thought Colson was suggesting Nixon had acknowledged approving the burglary of Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. But most said the testimony was either unclear or that it was clear Colson had not specifically referred to the burglary.

Members were expected to press Colson on what he did mean when their turn came, following committee counsels' questioning, to ask their own questions.

Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., said that during questioning on Ellsberg and the Pentagon Papers Colson testified that former aide John D. Ehrlichman had told him that Nixon had told assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen that he (Nixon) had approved "the operation."

But Colson said in response to newsmen's questions as he left the hearing room that he did not know what Ehrlichman was suggesting the President might have meant by that.

"I just used the precise words he used," Colson said.

Nixon said in a detailed statement on May 22, 1973, that he did order an investigation by the White House plumbers unit of Ellsberg as part of the investigation to find out how the Pentagon Papers had been leaked to the public. Nixon said he could understand how highly motivated aides could misconstrue his order and go further than the President had intended.

Fish quoted Colson as quoting Ehrlichman as saying Nixon made the statement of having approved "the operation" in April 1973 — nearly two years after the Ellsberg Pentagon Papers investigation.

Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio, said he understood Colson's testimony to go no further than Nixon's own May 22 statement that he had ordered the investigation of Ellsberg in connection with the Pentagon Papers leak.

Earlier, Colson told the committee that Nixon knew about and acquiesced in a cover story for the FBI investigation of CBS newsman Daniel Schorr, according to three congressmen.

Committee Leaning In Kissinger's Favor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee appeared ready Monday to accept the testimony of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger as to his role in national security wiretapping.

J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., told newsmen, "the discrepancies ... are not of great substance."

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he is "ready to stand" on the committee's finding last September that Kissinger's role in the wiretapping of 17 government officials and newsmen was not a barrier to his confirmation to be secretary of state.

Kissinger had testified that his role was to supply names of members of the National Security staff with access to information of the type being leaked to the press. He said he did not initiate the wiretapping.

Fulbright made public a letter from President Nixon calling Kissinger's testimony "entirely correct."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., told newsmen, "It is clear to me that anything Dr. Kissinger did, he did under instructions."

Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., was asked if he had heard anything to make him believe that Kissinger should not have been confirmed.

Aiken responded: "Hell no; excuse me, strike the first word."

The senators commented after a two-hour closed door hearing with FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley and two other FBI agents as witnesses.

The chairman called the investigation, undertaken at the request of Kissinger under threat to resign if his veracity was not confirmed, "a tempest in a teapot."

Connally's Testimony Conflicts With Others'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk-fund testimony by former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally conflicts with sworn statements from other witnesses and a fact sheet issued by the White House.

The Senate Watergate Committee published Connally's testimony gathered in closed sessions on the milk-fund affair last year.

Connally testified Nov. 15, denying under oath that he had accepted a $10,000 payment offered by a lawyer for a big dairy cooperative. The lawyer, Jake Jacobsen, has been accused of lying when he supported Connally's story, and now is reported to be ready to testify that Connally took the money.

The newly published transcripts show that Connally is in conflict with witnesses other than Jacobsen.

Connally denied a sworn statement by a top dairy cooperative official, Gary Han-man of Mid-America Dairymen Inc., who said two co-ops each promised Connally $25,000 for his "Democrats for Nixon" organization three months before the 1972 election.

The former Treasury secretary also swore he did not discuss dairymen's political contributions with the President. The White House issued a statement last January, after Connally testified, saying that Connally told Nixon "that the (dairy) industry had political funds."

Connally said repeatedly he could not recall a meeting described by two officials of Associated Milk Producers Inc. at which Connally allegedly told them the price increase they sought was "in the bag." He contradicted a sworn statement of one of the officials, Bob A. Lilly, who said he and Connally knew each other well and at one time met as frequently as three or four times a week.

Nixon Papers Value Discussed

Washington — The Internal Revenue Service, during its audit of President Nixon's taxes, employed independent appraisers who decided that Nixon's pre-presidential papers, which his appraiser had valued at $576,000, were actually worth less than half that amount. IRS is urging the Judiciary Committee not to make the audit report public, on the ground that all taxpayers are entitled to confidential treatment of their tax returns.

Meteor Narrowly Missed Rockies

©The New York Times

A meteor that narrowly missed the Rocky Mountain states two summers ago could have hit the earth with a force at least as great as that of the Hiroshima atomic bomb, subsequent studies indicate.

Along with thousands of other startled viewers from Utah north to the Canadian province of Alberta, Dr. Luigi Jaccchia of the Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., a leading expert on meteors, happened to see the rare fireball on the afternoon of Aug. 10, 1972, from Jackson Lake, Wyo., where he was vacationing.

From the meteor's apparent brightness, Jaccchia estimates in the current issue of the astronomy journal Sky and Telescope that the meteor, which sped only 36 miles above the Idaho-Montana border, might have measured 40 feet across and weighed 4,000 tons.

Such an object would have produced an impact about four times greater than the explosive force of the Hiroshima bomb, reckoned at about 20,000 tons of TNT.

Satellite Used

A more modest estimate, that the meteor would have had just the force of the Hiroshima explosive, came earlier from scientists in California. They used readings from an infrared instrument aboard a military satellite.

From orbit, the satellite observed the fireball's passage along a 1,000-mile pathway from south to north in 101 seconds.

The scientists were Dr. R. D. Rawcliffe of the Aerospace Corp. in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Charlotte Bartky and Mrs. Frank Li, Edward Gordon and David Carta of the Aerojet ElectroSystems Corp. in Azusa, Calif. They reported their conclusions in the Feb. 15 issue of the British journal Nature.

The California scientists estimated that the meteor might have been more than 12 feet across and weighed about 1,100 tons. They noted that the meteor was approaching the earth at nearly 10 miles a second "and if it had been at a slightly lower altitude, the damage would have been very extensive."

'Rare, Fortunately'

"Fortunately, meteors of this size are exceedingly rare," the scientist said.

The rarity of the meteorite was confirmed by Dr. Richard McCroskey of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., who heads the prairie network of automated stations for photographing meteor-trails at night.

Even if the various observations of the meteor turn out to have made it too large, McCroskey noted, it would still have been "a nice little thing to go off in your back yard on the Fourth of July."

A key measurement — the height of the meteor's path above the earth — resulted from readings taken by W. T. Rogers, a surveyor, near Billings, Mont.

Like many other observers of the fireball, Rogers was momentarily stunned. Then he realized that he was using a theodolite, a surveyor's telescope that could be used for making accurate measurements of the height above the horizon of the meteor's thick vapor trail.

This trail lingered at many places for 20 to 30 minutes.

Seen By Omahans

Two of the many observers were an Omaha policeman and his wife, James M. and Linda Baker, who had just arrived on a two-week camping vacation at Jackson Lake. As Baker prepared to photograph the Grand Tetons from the lakeshore, he spotted the fireball to the west, above the mountains.

He took a photograph of the passing fireball — and of his wife in the foreground — while yelling to her to operate the movie camera she held in her right hand. Baker recalled "I happened to be looking at the mountain, and I hollered at my wife and she took a movie of it."

Baker's color photograph was used on the cover of the current issue of Sky and Telescope, and a sequence of 56 frames of Mrs. Baker's color movie film was displayed across two full pages inside.

The Bakers assumed at first that they had seen the re-entry into the atmosphere of a rocket launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

It was not until they saw a dispatch from London in their local newspaper, reporting the California scientists' conclusions in Nature magazine, that the Bakers knew they had film of the rare fireball that narrowly missed the earth.

Jaccchia noted that the meteor's near-miss speeded it up sufficiently to put it on a different orbital pathway around the sun. "No matter how you look at it," he wrote, "it was an extraordinary fireball!"

Three Babies, Conceived In Test Tubes, Born

LONDON (AP) — Three babies conceived in laboratory test tubes and then implanted in the mother's womb have been born in Europe within the past 18 months, a British gynecologist revealed Monday.

Prof. Douglas Bevis of Leeds University said that to his knowledge the births were the first of their kind in the world.

The feat opens the way to successful childbearing by women whose fallopian tubes are blocked, if the procedure can be controlled. And it raises ethical questions.

The babies were conceived in the test tube with eggs taken from the mother's womb and fertilized with male sperm, and then put back in the womb after growing in the laboratory for about a week. Bevis said.

Bevis did not say specifically that the sperm came from the husbands of the women, but listeners said they assumed from the context of his remarks that it did.

All three babies are alive and do not have any apparent abnormalities, Bevis said. He declined to name the doctors or the individuals involved, but did say that at least one birth involved British people.

Bevis announced the births to a meeting of the British Medical Association.

In the United States, a leading authority on the subject, Dr.

Leon R. Kass, a physician and biochemist, said the announcement was not particularly surprising because of the number of people working in the field and the fact that fertilization in the laboratory has been done for some four years.

Kass, who will join the Kennedy Center for Bioethics at Georgetown University in September, said that if this technology were confined to use in such cases of infertility it is probably not a matter of great ethical importance in itself.

However, as "a step in a long series of steps yet to be taken," the technique possesses the potential for abuse and perhaps a challenge to the very nature of human reproduction, he said. Among the problems, he noted, would be the questions of using surrogate mothers to bear children for others, or the use of sperm not the husbands'.

Bevis added that in the foreseeable future there is "not the remotest chance of creating a total test tube baby — a fetus brought to full-term outside the womb."

Peoria's 'Baby Doll' Cowan Dies In Bed

Peoria, Ill. (UPI) — Sarah "Baby Doll" Cowan, the happy, grandmotherly hooker, was found dead Monday at the age of 73.

Peoria County Coroner Horace Payton said a heart attack apparently killed the old trouser who, true to her profession, died in bed. He said an autopsy would be performed.

Neighbors discovered the body of Miss Cowan at her Peoria home and called authorities.

Miss Cowan, who boasted she had been a prostitute for 54 years, gained national prominence last month when she complained of falling on hard times. She said she was just getting by on her $150 a month

Social Security payments and occasional flings into her profession, the world's oldest.

Couple Finds Rural Life Less Idyllic Than Anticipated

By ROBERT PETERSON
"It must be the work of the devil that tells men to buy a little farm when they retire," is the opening sentence of a letter from a woman in central Florida.

She goes on to say her husband, a welder in a trailer assembly plant, had long carried in mind a dream of the picturesque pleasures of retiring to a farm. He was so taken with the idea that he read farm magazines, visited livestock auctions, and took weekend drives into the hinterlands.

When he retired two years ago at 57 nothing would do but that they sell their home in the city and buy a 15-acre poultry farm some four miles from the nearest town.

His wife writes that they both found it fun at first. They tackled with enthusiasm the work of repairing barns and sheds, mending fences, and assembling flocks of chickens, ducks, and turkeys. But they soon discovered life on a poultry farm is less picturesque than the soothing clucks, quacks, and gobbles they had anticipated.

Chores kept them going from morning till night. They discovered they weren't as strong as they had thought. Retirement travels were out because they had to stay home and poultry-sit.

Hired hands were difficult to find. They often lacked know-how. And they missed their friends and the excitement of the city.

Then the husband fell ill from overwork. Ironically, the doctor recommended that they move to town so they'd have better access to medical care. By the time they were able to find a buyer for their farm, and repurchase a home in the city, they had lost several thousand dollars.

It's easy to appreciate how this couple must feel whenever anyone mentions farming. If you're tempted by the anticipated delights of rural life, ask yourself these questions before succumbing: Have you spent several months on a farm during the past decade so you know your fascination for farming is more than a whim?

Are you physically up to the demands of running even a small farm? Will you enjoy the isolation of farm life? Will you have someone available to take over if you want to do some traveling?

Do you know anything about the technical aspects of farming? Do you have sufficient income so you'll not be dependent on farm production for your support?

There's a far easier way for retirees to dabble in farming—provided they have extra money.

This is to become gentleman farmers. By buying a farm and hiring a knowledgeable tenant to operate it, the retiree can enjoy vicariously the delights of actually running a farm.

He can become conversationally involved in crops, livestock, fertilizers, egg production, and acreage returns. He can enjoy the agricultural atmosphere and feel he's a contributing member of the rural population. And he can spend as much time as he wishes on the farm. Best of all, he can stand to one side and watch as his tenant farmer carries out direct responsibility for getting the necessary work done.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplaine

London — A thin lemony sun falls on Piccadilly and the weather bureau reports: "Occasional bright periods." (Never occasional rain. You expect that. We always carry our umbrellas.) The cosh — the blackjack — is the weapon of the English heister. And the other day in crowded London, eight men jumped on an armored car. They coshed the driver. Attached a chain and hook to the back door. Ripped it off and jumped in to collect their deserved gains. At this point, a guard inside opened fire. "He's armed!" cried one of the robbers indignantly. They then got out and departed. Probably to cut the armored car people socially next time they meet on the street. The pistol used by the guard was a .22.

There is some question by the papers as to why the guard was carrying the lady-from-Bristol. I mean, this isn't Chicago, dear boy.

From Robin Hood and wily Dick Turpin — ("Stand and deliver, sir!") — the annals of British crime are filled with wonderful rules of behavior.

(Scotland Yard couldn't have gotten along without Sherlock Holmes. Any more than the Los Angeles Johnny Nabs could get along without Perry Mason.)

One major instrument that never appears is the smoking pistol.

British police don't carry arms. And by some unwritten agreement, neither do the merry highwaymen.

In the matter of Agatha Christie crime, the English bow to no one. The "Black Museum" at Scotland Yard has a collection of ingenuity.

Where the American wife reached for the bread-winner's loaded .38, the English bride makes do with all sorts of clever makeshifts.

Husbands are loaded with arsenic until they glow in the dark.

An infuriated lady recently filed her husband down — she did him in with a file.

"The Mad Butcher of Notting Hill" boiled his victims.

This makes the morning statistics a good deal more readable.

When I was doing blood-and-thunder epics for the dailies, I got awfully tired of the sameness of murder.

Outlawing the pistol is the biggest thing that ever happened for British journalism.

From gaslit years to the neon era of Piccadilly Circus, the ladies winked their way down the sidewalks, took a token weekly arrest and paid a fine of two pounds. "Annoying gentlemen in Glasshouse Street," was the charge.

The law was changed. And second offense fines rose to five times that much.

The ladies have now taken flats off Soho, the Greenwich Village of London.

They advertise on curious corner public notice things they have here.

English courts have held that the action is illegal. But advertising is not.

Swanson Promises To Attend Meetings

After a two-month absence, Nebraska Public Service Commissioner John Swanson attended Monday's commission meeting and promised to serve actively in the remaining months of his term.

Swanson, whose absences began following his failure to win renomination in the May 14 Republican primary, told reporters he has been "vacationing in western Nebraska for health and other reasons."

"I intend to be here until my term expires," he said.

Swanson Written

On July 3, three members of the five-man commission agreed to write Swanson and inquire as to whether he intended to attend commission meetings. At that time, Commissioner Eric Rasmussen said Swanson's absences made it "difficult and at times impossible for the commission to function."

Commission chairman Robert Marland said at that meeting that Swanson had told him shortly after the election not to expect to see him at commission meetings.

Swanson Monday denied he ever made such a statement to Marland.

"I never said that," answered Swanson, who said he lost 25 pounds while "vacationing." "I always intended to come back."

"Haven't Missed Many?" "For 9½ years I haven't missed many meetings."

Out of the seven meetings following the primary, Swanson was absent for two and left before any major business was taken up at the other five.

He said a phone call on one occasion and a meeting on another caused him to leave two meetings before any action was taken. He said he could not remember what happened on the other occasions.

Isn't Important

Asked if he felt his absences hindered commission action, Swanson replied, "If it isn't anything controversial, it isn't important for all commissioners to be present."

Swanson said he did not know if any "controversial" matters were scheduled for action on the days of his absences.

He said he had received "no flak" from any of his constituents in western Nebraska for his absences. Jack Romans of Ord defeated Swanson in the primary.

Rasmussen said he was "delighted" to see Swanson back at the commission.

No Hurry On Speed Limit

The Democratic-controlled Congress, high-centered on the rocky ridge of impeachment, is making little headway in other legislative areas, says John Y. McCollister, Republican congressman from Nebraska's Second District.

McCollister is plugging for an increase in the speed limit nationwide from 55 m.p.h. to at least 60 m.p.h., but he doubts that Congress will act on the matter soon. He said several bills calling for an increase in the speed limit have been submitted to the House Public Works Committee, but have become mired there.

While it's true that Congress is suffering from the impeachment syndrome and has not recently taken great legislative strides in a number of important areas because of its narrow interest of the moment, it's also true that the question of the possible impeachment of Richard Nixon is of paramount importance and the outcome will possibly lay the official ground rules for presidential conduct, or misconduct, for years to come.

But impeachment aside, we don't see the speed limit as a partisan issue or a tremendously important one.

Initially, the speed limit was lowered to save on gasoline which was supposed to be in short supply for a number of reasons. The lowering of the speed limit also has had a fortunate side effect: a decrease in the traffic death rate. So for an irritated, fast-moving public, the lowering of the speed limit has done two things — saved gas and lives. And although opinions are divided on whether the new maximum limit is being observed, the savings of fuel and lives seem to indicate that many, many motorists are abiding by it, whether they like it or not.

When it gets around to the question, we think Congress should balance the safety and fuel conservation factors against the convenience factor. If it can be proven or reasonably assumed that the nation can afford the additional burning of motor fuel and that traffic deaths would not increase again, we would favor an increase to 60 m.p.h. And to be realistic, Congress should, whatever they decide for other motorists, increase the speed limit for trucks, because most trucks have been making a mockery of the federal edict by driving under their own speed limit laws anyway.

'... Not As We Do'

It seems to be a case of "do as we say" and not as we do."

A story by magazine writer Nina Totenberg charges the U.S. Supreme Court with having personnel policies better fitted to an old time southern plantation. The court is said to give virtually all the better paying, prestigious jobs to whites and the undesirable jobs to blacks despite all its rulings that the Constitution commands racial equality in government, said UPI in a review of the forthcoming article.

"Statistics . . . tell a lot about the Supreme Court, but they tell the wrong story," says Ms. Totenberg. "The 21 laborers are all black. The 19 skilled craftsmen . . . are all white.

"The 22 charwomen are all black. Of the 21 secretaries to the justices, 20 are white. All the justices' messengers are black. The next term will bring the second black law clerk in the court's history. The secretarial pool is all white. The telephone operators are all white. The full-time librarians are white, except for two black messengers. The three printers are white.

The three elevator operators are black . . . "Word of mouth recruiting . . . seems to be the order of the day, even though it has been held illegal by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission," the article says.

The court has thus far declined to comment on the charges, although asked by UPI through the public relations office to do so. A comment from the court, should it be forthcoming, would be interesting.

It is hard to imagine the nine justices taking a hand in the hiring of support personnel at each job level, with their minds collectively focused on the meaty issues of the times and an overloaded docket. And it should be remembered, too, that the court has taken the lead in forcing changes in American society which have allowed minorities a better chance for equal opportunity. But it is a reasonable suggestion that the court also lead by example. It should put its own house in order.

At any rate, the court has been caught with its slip showing. Or its pants down. Whatever.

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

WASHINGTON — For most Americans, it is bewildering and too painful to contemplate the possibility that Richard Nixon entered the White House in 1969 fully intending to use the presidency to make himself a rich man. Since the presidency is sanctified in our national imagination, it boggles the mind to think that any man who has won this great honor might see it as a wonderful opportunity to line his pockets.

But it is also a distinct honor to become mayor of one's native city or governor of one's state. Yet trials in criminal courts tell over and over again the chilling story of mayors and governors who set out systematically from the day they took the oath of office to exploit their offices for private gain. When corruption is a recurrent problem at the local and state level, it is only realism to recognize that sooner or later a financially corrupt man might slip through the net of public watchfulness and get his hands on the presidency.

As soon as Nixon was elected in 1968, he bought a house and land in Key Biscayne, Fla., for a purchase price of more than $250,000. Six months later, he went deeply into debt to buy an estate in California for $1.4 million. From the outset, it was a mystery how with his modest capital he could hope to pay for and maintain these two expensive properties.

Gradually, this mystery is being solved, though the whole answer is not yet known. First, he paid very little federal income tax by claiming huge, unwarranted deductions. Secondly, he bulled the government for millions of dollars in improvements and maintenance costs on the false basis that the Secret Service required them for security reasons.

A third part of the answer begins to emerge in the Senate Watergate Committee's report. Exhibit No. 15 in that report is a confidential memorandum from H. R. Haldeman to John D. Ehrlichman. It reads in part:

"Bebe Rebozo has been asked by the President to contact J. Paul Getty in London regarding major contributions.

"Bebe would like advice from you or someone as to how this can be legally and technically handled. The funds should go to some operating entity other than the (Republican) National Committee so that we can retain full control of their use.

"Bebe would appreciate your calling him with this advice as soon as possible since the President has asked him to move quickly."

This memorandum is dated Feb. 17, 1968. Why was the President seeking money less than a month after he entered office?

Money was not needed to pay off any debt from the President's 1968 campaign. That campaign ended with a surplus of more than $1 million that had already been placed in various California bank accounts under the control of Herbert Kalmbach, the President's personal lawyer.

Whether Getty made a "major contribution" to this secret fund is not clear, but Howard Hughes gave $100,000 in cash and the head of a chain of Florida supermarkets gave $50,000, also in cash. Despite Rebozo's care in "laundering" money through accounts controlled by his own attorney, the Senate committee has traced some of this cash to show that it was used to pay for improvements on Nixon's Key Biscayne house and to buy a pair of diamond earrings for Mrs. Nixon.

When a man is preoccupied with money, nothing valuable escapes his attention. The Constitution explicitly forbids officials of the government from accepting gifts from any foreign king or country. Since 1881, the law has provided that all such gifts be turned over to the chief of protocol in the State Department for deposit in a museum or other public institution.

Nevertheless, when Nixon left office as vice president in 1961 he took with him many valuable foreign gifts.

As soon as he became president, Nixon transferred record keeping on gifts to himself and his family from the protocol office to an office in the White House. Why?

It required a tip from a former White House employee and persistent digging by Maxine Cheshire of the Washington Post to uncover this year the fact that Mrs. Nixon had received valuable jewels from the king of Saudi Arabia. Some of them had not been listed even in the White House's own confidential file until the day after Mrs. Cheshire first inquired about them.

A five-piece matched set of emeralds and diamonds had been appraised by jeweler Harry Winston in 1970 at $52,000. Why did the Nixons have jewels privately appraised which under the Constitution they had no right to keep?

Warning signals about Nixon have been flashing "danger" from the beginning of his career, but the press and the public refused to heed them. One such warning was the $205,000 loan that Nixon obtained in 1960 for his brother's roadside restaurant from Howard Hughes. How many other bankrupt restaurants has Hughes loaned money on? Was Hughes taking out a second mortgage on a hamburger joint or a future president?

The White House reeks with scandal today because too many people for too long gave Nixon the benefit of the doubt where no doubt existed.

JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON — The conviction of John Ehrlichman for conspiracy and perjury in the case of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist — though it will be appealed — is regarded here as highly significant for two main reasons.

First, it rests in part on the principle that an official is responsible for the acts of his subordinates, if he approved a "covert" plan that led to illegal acts, even if he did not approve a specific act of burglary under that plan.

Second, it sustained Judge Gerhard Gesell's principle that even good motives do not justify illegal acts. "An individual cannot escape criminal liability simply because he sincerely but incorrectly believes that his acts are justified in the name of patriotism, of national security . . ." Gesell told the jury.

These two points bear directly on the question of what a government official may or may not do and, if sustained, are likely to make White House aides much more cautious in the future about authorizing dubious practices regardless of their motives. And they bear indirectly on the continuing impeachment inquiry in the case of President Nixon.

Here a distinction has to be made between the Ehrlichman Case and the Nixon Case. Ehrlichman approved in writing a "covert operation" to examine Dr. Fielding's files on Ellsberg's psychiatric record, provided that operation was "not traceable." There is no such evidence that President Nixon did the same.

Courts Begin To Attain Role

Nevertheless, the Judiciary Committee's transcript of a March 22, 1973, conversation between the President and John Mitchell does suggest evidence that the President did know about the cover-up of illegal acts, did not "take care that the laws are faithfully executed," but conspired to, and did, obstruct justice by suggesting that his aides avoid telling the truth.

In that conversation, the President, according to the Judiciary Committee's transcript of the tapes, suggested a flexible policy of giving some information to the Senate Watergate Committee "in order to get on with the cover-up plan."

Later in the same conversation, in a long Nixon-Mitchell exchange, which the President personally directed should be cut out of the transcripts he made public on April 30, Nixon is quoted as saying (skipping his barnyard language): "I want you all to stonewall it, let them (his suspected aides) plead the Fifth Amendment, cover up or anything else, if it'll save the plan, that's the whole thing."

In short, the President, according to this passage, clearly knew in general about the cover-up, which was an obstruction of justice and, if tolerated by the President, a violation of his oath to "take care that the laws are faithfully executed," and if Ehrlichman's conviction is sustained on the basis of his general approval of a "covert operation," then the President is in even deeper trouble as being a party to a specific crime.

The psychological effect of the Ehrlichman conviction on the Judiciary Committee and the members of the House and Senate is probably more important than anything else. The President and his lawyer are saying that to impeach and convict, you have to find clear evidence that Nixon personally, and intentionally, committed a high crime, prove him unequivocally to be a crook, or, to use the vivid but offensive common phrase, "find the smoking gun" in his hands.

In the Ehrlichman case, the judge and jury said something far less than this could be a crime: "You didn't have to catch Ehrlichman rifling Dr. Fielding's files in order to convict him." Or even prove that he said, "Go burgle his office and get the files." Even if he thought it was okay to mount a "covert operation" just so it wasn't "traceable," Gesell said that was enough to convict.

Key figures in the House Judiciary Committee, like Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., have been edging toward the argument that the test of impeachment is not one of finding the "smoking gun" but the wider test of general knowledge of crime, and now the conviction of Ehrlichman has greatly strengthened his position.

In their slow and steady way, the courts are becoming the decisive factor in this controversy, and the conviction of Ehrlichman is only an example of their power. Within a week or two, before the Judiciary Committee votes whether to bring in articles of impeachment, the Supreme Court will decide whether the President has to hand over the rest of the tapes and evidence.

That will be the critical moment for all three branches of government — judicial, executive and legislative. The first question lies with the members of the Supreme Court. It is an ironic accident of history that while they were considering their decision, former Chief Justice Earl Warren died and the members of the court marched to the solemn music in the Washington Cathedral and they listened to the appeals for justice and unity in the Republic, and former Justices Abe Fortas and Arthur Goldberg were with them, and one wondered what they thought.

Later we will hear from Chief Justice Burger, as we heard from Judge Gesell in the Ehrlichman case, and in the end of this tragedy, the courts are likely to be decisive on what the Congress does.

Point of View

By LINVILLE I. PRALL
Executive Secretary
Nebraska Association of Public Employees

The Lincoln Star of Wednesday, June 26, carried a news article headed "Number of State Workers in Unions Drops Off" as written by Bob Guenther, Star staff writer. At the inception of this article, the writer desires to assure the reader that exception is not taken with the publication or with the writer of the article.

The news account indicates that state administrative officials translate declining numbers of state employees with membership in unions or associations as indicating growing satisfaction with the Uniform Classification and Pay Plan and fringe benefits afforded to state employees.

The following extracted from a recent letter received by the Nebraska Association of Public Employees from an outstate state employee in withdrawing his membership in NAPE refutes the opinion that "All is well" or that "Things are really improved" which accounts for the declining union/association membership:

"I really and sincerely hoped this thing (the association) could do justice for all state employees — and sure hope you folks can 'break the barrier.' I've worked 18 years for the state wanting to make it my life's work. It is downright sickening the way we get pushed around for a few pennies. As I have a large family, I feel I need every penny I can get. The cost of living keeps going up and we (state employees) keep slipping back each year a little more. At least for the time being I would like to discontinue my membership with NAPE. I hope to get back to you fine people later on. Keep up the good work. Good Luck and God bless."

This letter surely refutes the opinion of state administrators that declining employee organizational membership indicates growing satisfaction with their lot on the part of state employees. The particular state employee writing the letter of withdrawal makes between $5,952 and $7,596 for his loyal, dedicated career employment as a para-professional and his 18 years as a state employee. He was in line for a $300 ($25 per month) assured raise and a possible maximum one-step raise in the Classification and Pay Plan of not to exceed $28 per month ($336 per annum). Assuming that he would be lucky enough to receive the maximum of $636, such a raise would constitute a 10.2% raise based upon a present Step 3 salary level of $6,240. This percentage of raise appears to be respectable because of the low base salary on which it is computed.

Those employees finding themselves in the $12,000-per-annum salary bracket will settle for 7.5% raises if they are lucky enough to receive one-step raises in the Pay Plan in accordance with legislative intent. Would the reader of this article conclude that the meeting of an increase in the cost of living of 12% with a 7.5% increase in pay is a real morale builder? Directors of departments who received $2,500 raises in pay must look upon the pay plan with favor — many employees do not.

The phrase, "termination of employment with state," has been the reason for 56% of NAPE's members disappearing from the membership roles during the first five months of 1974. These statistics cannot be interpreted as indication of increasing satisfaction and contentment with the Classification and Pay Plan as indicated in the news article which precipitated the writing of this letter. Revelation of the withdrawals that the unions and associations have been experiencing is a clever way to divert attention from the real problem facing our Nebraska state government. NAPE knows that the excessive 56% terminating state employment in our own membership ranks is applicable to all state employment. The rate is no higher in union/association membership than it is in state employees who do not belong to unions/associations. The Nebraska taxpayers foot the bill for the penalty of the state's inadequate pay and benefits.

Show me an employer in the private sector or industrial sector with employees "coming and going" at a rate that hypothetically constitutes all of the employees leaving in 12 months, and you will be showing me an employer who is on the verge of going out of business or already defunct. With the taxpayer standing the expense — this wasteful practice can continue.

The turn of the fiscal year also produced further disappointment for some 1,200 state employees who received next to no raise at all on July 1, 1973. Some two months later in early September, these 1,200 received "spot" pay raises which they should have received on July 1. This spot adjustment came about by the decree of the governor but only after angry protests were forwarded in volume. Nothing was said about making the September raises retroactive to July 1 so that equitable treatment would have been afforded to the 1,200. The penalty of being denied two months of the added raise in pay will now result in penalizing many of these 1,200 once more in that July 1, 1974, did not see them receive their one-step increases in the pay plan. These "select" employees must wait until their newly established anniversary dates in September to come about. Their rich reward will be a 5%, one-step increase if they are fortunate enough to receive such.

Yes, increasing satisfaction with the Uniform Classification and Pay Plan, as well as other state employment benefits is causing a steady decline in union/association membership. Although the Classification and Pay Plan has been in effect only one year, it is only a faded memory with many employees. They are among the 50% that terminated state employment. Dissatisfaction and no desire to "stay tuned — more to follow" must have been the reasons for their departure.

Watergate For Sale

WASHINGTON — What's in a name? Plenty, if you're collecting or selling Watergate autographs, a fad that may soon rival digging up old Captain Marvel comics or Nazi war souvenirs.

A prize bargain in this new hobby is an envelope signed by indicted ex-Attorney General John Mitchell, and bearing a first-day-of-issue Law and Order stamp. It's only $15.

Souvenir Nixon inaugural envelopes signed in happier days by White House aides H.R. Haldeman or John Ehrlichman cost $25. Rose Mary Woods' name on an envelope commemorating the President's trip to Russia, goes for $10. Her signature on an 18-minute blank piece of tape would probably bring a fortune.

A Bill of Rights stamped envelope signed by Senate

Watergate chief counsel, Sam Dash, costs $8. Unaccountably, one signed by his pipe-smoking minority colleague, Fred Thompson, brings $10.

An autograph by former Commerce secretary and Nixon fund-raiser Maurice Stans, recently acquitted in a felony case involving world securities trader Robert Vesco, costs $15. It's on a World Trade stamp cover. That is also the price of a Nixon inaugural envelope signed by the man Nixon forced out as attorney general, Elliot Richardson.

An inaugural cover bearing the signature of the President's wheeler-dealer brother, Don, costs $10. Special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, and his predecessor Archibald Cox's signatures on covers also fetch $10.

first Nixon cabinet, starring disbarred former Vice President Spiro Agnew, costs $200. And a picture of Supreme Court justices, bearing their autographs, is a bargain at $150 now that they are deciding whether Nixon can refuse to give up evidence.

Two off-beat items bring premiums. One is a 1971 letter for $35 signed by astronaut Donald Slayton saying that "I know of no plans to send the President into space in 1976." Another is a signed photo of Mylai murderer L.L. William Calley, which goes for $75.

Footnote: Watergate signatures cited are priced by J. Fricelli. Other dealers have different rates, but all guarantee authenticity. Actually, in Watergate Washington, secretaries often forge their busy bosses' names to autograph requests.

The Road Leads To Japan

Delanie Delimont

by NANCY HICKS
Star Women's Editor

When Delanie Delimont rejoined the Girl Scouting program after a more than five-year absence, she went into it full swing. In addition to being an active member of Senior Troop 135, she is a camp counselor and works with Junior Troop 90.

And she is also one of the select few — 36 girls from across the nation — who this summer will travel to foreign countries under the International Opportunities program.

On July 20 she will leave for a five-week trip through Japan, where she will live with six different families in various sections of the country in a "kind of mini-AFS" program, as she describes it.

Though she is trying to learn a few simple greetings, "yes," "no," "thank you," and "money," each family she visits is supposed to have at least one English speaking member.

The first Homestead Council scout that local executives can remember being chosen for the International Opportunities program, Delanie had to pass through the selection process at local, regional and national levels.

But competition locally wasn't too tough. She was the only girl to apply.

Delanie would like to change this. She will return to Lincoln early in September armed with slides of her trip, hoping to spread the word about these scouting opportunities to other Lincoln scouts.

Opportunities this summer include the Japan trip, do mini-Peace Corps type work in Africa, and touring through Europe.

Delanie, who will be a senior at East High School this fall, hopes that other Lincoln scouts will take advantage of the program in the future. The cost is minimal. Her mother, Mrs. Rose Marie Delimont, figures the cost for passport, gifts and swaps, will be about $100 — not too bad for a tour of Japan.

The major trip costs are paid through by the nickels and dimes collected from scouts each year under the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund.

The East High School senior comes by her interest in scouting naturally. Her parents were both active as scout leaders in earlier years.

Delanie, who wants a career in program planning for youth, is spending her days and nights this summer keeping herd on the girls attending Camp WaShawtee in Iowa.

And in her spare time she is furiously making little letter-holding boxes to be used as gifts for her Japanese host families, and decorated soaps which will be "swapped" with other Girl Guides during a two-day Asia Pacific campout.

She is also studying Japanese eating habits to share with the nine other American scouts who are heading for Japan. And while in Japan she will explain the midwestern meat and potatoes eating habits to her new Japanese friends.

Planning what to take is like working out a puzzle — a puzzle which weighs no more than 35 pounds and which contains clothes for three types of weather, gifts and five pounds of soap "swaps".

Also among 35 pounds will be six frisbees for the children in the Japanese families she visits. But first Delanie had to make sure that frisbee is a good old American game.

"I checked to make sure they weren't from Japan," she said.

It's Time For A Reorientation

Editor's Note: Last of a series excerpted from the book, "Raising Children In A Difficult Time," by Dr. Benjamin Spock.

I BELIEVE THAT a major reason we are in such trouble in this country — with our extremely high rates of divorce and marital tension, brutality to children, crime, delinquency, drug addiction and alcoholism, worsening racial hatred, an often ruthless and dangerous foreign policy — is that we have greatly overemphasized certain aspects of the American credo: competition, materialism, each man for himself and success measured in dollars and power.

I'm convinced that if we are to survive, men and women in much greater numbers, in whatever field we work, will have to be inspired by a quite different ideal — that of loving service to our fellow beings, whether the work we do is in a big industry or in a small shop or office, whether it is paid or volunteer, whether it is outside or inside the home. All these sorts of work can be fulfilling and creative and generous in spirit. Or they can be the opposite.

THE EMPHASIS SHOULD be on personal helpfulness in as direct and informal and friendly a manner as possible. Service in this spirit is more usable and gratifying to the recipient. It is less likely to turn the worker into a routinized, depersonalized, self-promoting, authoritarian cog — like so many of the people we have to deal with today in businesses, the professions and government bureaus.

Big hospital clinics, for example, could be divided and dispersed into small, friendly, neighborhood clinics. Social work — whether counseling for the individual or group work or community organizing — could be carried out by small groups or by individuals in each locality.

Teaching should be progressively removed from the huge, rigid metropolitan school systems and the giant, impersonal universities. In small schools and colleges there could be more meaningful relationships and, therefore, a more inspiring atmosphere for each student. Experimentation and change could take place more readily.

Nowadays, most people get their diplomas and degrees in their youth and then consider their education done. It would be better if they could think of education as a continuing process. They could return to school again and again as the needs of society changed. This philosophy would be particularly helpful to mothers and fathers who had taken time off to care for their young children and were again ready for additional education, perhaps for a revised career.

IF WE ARE REALLY to solve the problems of the resentments of women, the rivalry between the sexes, the care of children (as well as the bitterness of the minorities and the poor), I believe we must no longer be motivated by the search for maximum profits but must instead put the highest priority on improving the quality of life for every individual — as consumer and as worker. The ingenuity and the kindness of the American people — combined with our national resources, our high level of education, and our productive machinery — will ensure success if we can visualize our aims clearly.

The point I've been leading up to is that if we can shift the ideals of our whole society in the direction of helpfulness to each other and creativity, our children would not need to think in terms of a sharp, arbitrary choice between a traditional job in an organization or homebound parenthood or a somewhat difficult compromise between the two.

Instead, we could be talking to our sons and daughters from time to time throughout their childhood along the following lines (my actual language here, of course, is too stuffy to use with children):

"There are many aspects to living and serving humanity. The most fundamental and gratifying one, we think, is to create a loving family. This is the responsibility equally of husband and wife.

"Couples should share all their responsibilities to the greatest possible extent.

"If and when a mother desires an outside career, her husband should be ready to make whatever adjustments are necessary to share equally in the home obligations.

"A FATHER'S PARTICIPATION in home care and child care gives him the satisfaction of fostering and watching his children's development. It also lets his wife see that he really does consider these jobs to be truly important, creative ones. Then she can gain a greater sense of fulfillment from them herself.

"Your future children, to become really productive people, will need all the companionship, affection, and inspiration that you, their fathers and mothers, will be able to give them.

"There are many vital activities to work at aside from salaried jobs: child care, meals, and housework, making the home and garden beautiful. There are the volunteer jobs in the community. There are the neighborhood groups that provide for active participation in arts, drama, dance, crafts.

"Each kind of work can be soul-satisfying if you feel you are contributing and creating, and more so if your work is appreciated.

"HOUSING, CLOTHING, FOOD and other essentials have to be secured but they don't need to be expensive and ostentatious. The essentials can be bought, but they can also — in part — be created. So the income is not the most important consideration in choosing work.

"The outside jobs of either or both parents should be judged by their value to society and by the spiritual gratification they yield, more than by the pay and prestige. Fathers as well as mothers, in choosing a job, should be sure it allows plenty of time to be with the family.

"It is important for girls just as much as for boys to prepare themselves for skilled service to society for several reasons. The world's needs are endless. At a period like the present, when couples marry and have their few children at a young age, they will have more years remaining when they are not necessarily needed at home. In the climate of today, large numbers of women do not feel fulfilled by home care and child care alone.

"This does not mean that a woman should feel apologetic if, throughout her life, she never takes a paying job. She may be utilizing to the full all her capabilities and her education in being the central source of inspiration in her family. She may also, through the warmth of her relationships, be a powerful influence in making the so-called community in which she lives into a genuine community.

"THE SAME PHILOSOPHY should apply to a man. If his wife wants to work outside and earns enough to support the family, he might choose to make his greatest contribution not on a payroll but in the family and in the community. (It will probably take some time for men to feel comfortable about their wives' earning the family's entire income.)"

I want to emphasize my main point once more at the end: It is too much to ask women or men to make an ideal adjustment to some combination of family care and outside work as our society is now oriented. It's time for the society to become more adapted to human needs.

Opening lead - queen of spades.

In playing a hand it is surely right to make use of well-established principles. Their efficacy has been confirmed and promulgated by the very highest authorities, and they tend to be a good guide in most hands.

But — there's the rub — "most" implies "not always," and the sound player must constantly be on guard for the exception that proves the rule.

Consider this deal where South failed in a frequently-encountered situation. He won the spade lead with the ace, played a low trump to the eight, and returned a club. East followed low, and South played the jack.

West took the queen and returned a trump. Declarer played the jack from dummy and led another club. This time the king lost to the ace and West returned a third trump. Eventually South lost a diamond and another club to go down one.

In effect, South was led astray by his holding of the K-J-x facing two small. Had he held the 4-3-2 of clubs, he would surely have made the contract. He would have led a club from his hand at trick two and later ruffed a club in dummy to nail down the contract.

It was the initial trump lead to dummy — to gain the illusory advantage of leading towards the K-J-x — that opened wide the door to defeat. It is true that in most hands, with such a club combination, a declarer would not dream of playing the king, jack or four towards dummy's 6-5.

But here, that is precisely what South should have done. Granted that such a play seems sacrilegious — it grossly violates the rule of leading towards strength instead of away from it — the fact remains that violating the rule insures the contract, while following it jeopardizes the contract.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law is a very self-centered person. She left her husband (my brother) after 25 years of marriage, to marry a gigolo-type man.

This caused my brother to have a nervous breakdown, during which time she never came near him to offer sympathy or help to her former mate, who would have died had it not been for us — his sisters and brothers.

This faithless wife even gave custody of their 15-year-old son to her husband, saying the boy was a nuisance.

Now, after several years of ignoring my brother, this terrible woman AND her gigolo husband have fallen on hard times, so they came to my brother, who offered to share his home with them.

Free room and board he's giving these worthless people! They have been there for several months now, and my brother will not permit any interference from any of his family.

Have you ever heard of a former husband permitting an erring wife and the man who broke up his marriage to be permanent guests in his home? He has no pride, apparently. Could this breakdown have added his brain? My brother holds down a responsible, high caliber job.

DEAR BEWILDERED: If your brother's brain were "addled," he couldn't be holding down a high caliber job. But addled or not, it's his home and his decision — not yours — so stay out of it.

DEAR ABBY: What do you suggest for a non-sexist salutation in a business letter?

Obviously, "Dear Sir" is inappropriate; "To Whom It May Concern" is too verbose; "Greetings" connotes induction into the armed forces.

To further true equality, especially in this male-dominated business world, a new vocabulary is necessary.

MW. W.

DEAR MS. W.: I offer, for your consideration, the unimaginative "Sir or Madam." (Too lacking in warmth and courtesy?) or, "Attention." (Or does that suggest "Achtung!" the German command?) "To Whom It May Concern"

It's His Decision

may be verbose, but it is non-sexist and conveys precisely what the writer has in mind, which is still communication at its best.

DEAR ABBY: Who is right? Here is the situation: My husband of three years, my in-laws and I were having supper at our house.

My husband said to me, "Honey, will you please get me some more water?" I said to him, "God gave you two strong legs. If you want more water, get it yourself, dear." (We all work fulltime.)

His mother immediately jumped up from the table and got him some more water.

I said nothing at the table, but later I told my husband that I didn't think his mother should intercede in a two-way discussion between him and me.

I love and respect my mother-in-law, but I am curious as to what you think of this.

THE WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your mother-in-law should have ignored the exchange between your husband and you, but since she didn't, you shouldn't have made a big deal out of it. She probably acted out of habit. (Mothers are easily trained.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNCLE HENRY: No horse can go as fast as the money you bet on him.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to Double Ugly: I have never met an ugly person I didn't like. They have personality plus!

When I was a young girl, I learned the little fellows with to ask a favor of. The handsome guys were too busy thinking about themselves.

Mr. Ugly, I like you already, for you have shown a lot of character and humility by asking for help with your problem. That is beauty right there! So you see, you aren't as ugly as you thought you were.

ONE WHO KNOWS

FOOTNOTES!

Teenager to mother: "You shouldn't be out there mowing the lawn. Mom. Where's Dad?"

A saver is a far sighted person who lays away money for the government's rainy day.

When a man won't listen to his conscience, it's usually because he doesn't want advice from a total stranger.

A vegetable is a substance used to balance a child's plate while it's being carried to and from the table.

Money may not bring happiness, but it's nice to be able to find this out for yourself.

What Makes Blue Jeans Durable?

laundrying instructions were followed, the durable press jeans required very little, if any, ironing after washings.

Construction features definitely add to durability of jeans. Waistbands should be folded back and stitched, not just overcast. Look for double seams where stress is likely, side seams of the legs, the crotch and seat seams.

Check the lower end of the zipper where raw edges should be turned in and sewn down. Bar

Fairgrounds Bracing For Opening Day Of Horse Racing

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Horsemen wishing to enter their runners on Tuesday's opening-day card at the State Fairgrounds couldn't have asked for more assistance from the racing secretary's office.

"We had assistant racing secretary Rich Crockett take entries in Omaha for horsemen that couldn't get down here on Saturday (the final day of Ak-Sar-Ben horse racing)," said new racing secretary Bob Pollock. "We also took entries down here for Tuesday so horsemen had two choices of where they could enter and we had great cooperation from the horsemen."

Pollock, who served as assistant racing secretary for three years before assuming the top post this year, said he was pleased with the nine races on Tuesday.

"We have a real fine card on Tuesday," he said. "I think the 3-year-old is our strongest division all the way from the handicap horses on down."

Some of the top older runners set to compete in Lincoln this year include Gungo, Southside Boy, Nebr. Harvest, Arian Ray, Great Commander, Stumpy The Boy, Wild Wink, Shouldebe Hasty, Merrill's Flight, Ben's Whiz, Bet's Robin

Jac, Ride The Bubbles, Semi-Phade, Vagabond Queen.

State Fairgrounds' general manager Henry Brandt said the track is in the best shape its ever despite the recent hot, dry weather that has plagued the Lincoln area.

Workers have watered the track to prevent it from becoming dry and hard with the 100-degree temperatures. He added that almost 1,000 yards of sand have been poured on the 5-8ths-mile track during the past two months.

"We've got to get some rain so everybody will feel better," Brandt said. "Our 5 p.m. post times will help since it cools off a little in the early evening when we'll be racing."

The opening-day card of nine races is highlighted by the $3,500 Inaugural Handicap which has lured seven 3-year-old fillies.

Topping the entrants is the Paul Kemling-entry of Queen's Turn and Patsy's Reign, who both enjoyed success at Fanner Park in Grand Island and Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha.

Queen's Turn, who earned more than $47,000 in her juvenile racing season last year, had trouble at Grand Island, but has been running well in Omaha.

She won the $15,600 Countess Stakes and an allowance scamper. In the Countess, Patsy's Reign finished second as the two fillies enjoyed their finest racing day this season for their Aurora owner.

In the Countess, the Kemling runners defeated such speedsters as Vickies Gigi, Road of Roses and Miss Jackie Robin in that 5 1/2-furlong event.

Both have earned co-top-weight of 121 pounds from Pollock.

Martynhast, who has campaigned at Park Jefferson in Jefferson, S.D., captured a handicap race at the South Dakota track recently. She also has been assigned 121 pounds.

Other competitors and their weight loads include Bart Ford's Some Dams, a recent Ak-Sar-Ben victress in a route test, 118 pounds and the Napier Borthers' Sonny's Lancer and Beverly Donahoe's Beverly's Prize, each 112 pounds.

Early Doubles

Lincoln racing will again offer early daily double wagering from 11:30-1:30 p.m. each weekday.

Programs and Daily Racing Forms will be available and admission and parking will be free for patrons purchasing doubles during the noon hour.

More Records Likely At Lincoln

If the trend in Nebraska horse racing and at the national level continues, the State Fairgrounds meeting opening Tuesday will set new attendance and betting records.

The Thoroughbred Racing Association reports that for the first six months this year a total of 14,355,266 fans have wagered $1,557,887,538 at TRA tracks, as compared with attendance of 14,470,082 and pari-mutuel sales of $1,458,963,233 during the same period in 1973.

In Nebraska, both the Fanner Park and Ak-Sar-Ben meetings established betting and crowd records.

Now it's Lincoln's turn starting at 5 p.m. Tuesday. The meeting runs through Aug. 17. The remainder of Nebraska's 1974 schedule is Aug. 20 through Sept. 21 at Columbus and Sept. 25 through Nov. 2 at Atokad.

The State Fairgrounds track has been on a record setting binge each of the last two meetings, and if more marks are set this year they're certain to continue in the next few years because of extensive improvements planned by general manager Henry Brandt.

Two years ago, the local track produced $267,019.40 in pari-mutuel taxes to the state and $17,962 from taxes on admissions. That total of $284,981.40 was far above the previous high of $224,712.38 paid in 1971.

The total bet was $7,675,485 for an average of $255,849. The track paid $441,866.60 in purse monies, also a record.

1973 Was Even Better

Taxes last year totalled $344,637.30, broken down into $326,936.40 from pari-mutuels and $17,700.90 in admission taxes.

A record $441,928 was wagered on one day, the final Saturday. Also a single race wagering record of $53,593 was established and an exacta mark of $43,944 was posted.

One thing that has boosted wagering is the advance sale of daily double tickets. A new 48-hour advance entry deadline could help further increase fan interest in the ponies.

The double windows will be open between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. every weekday, enabling fans who work too late to make the first race to get their money down during their lunch hour. That could make lunch an expensive affair.

How About Gal Outriders?

With all the talk of Women's Lib and sex bias going on all over the country, I wonder if Brandt has thought about adding young ladies as outriders?

The fair sex, reports the TRA, can be found today riding races, training horses, grooming horses, or behind the pari-mutuel windows, in the race track publicity department and even in the press box.

The latest breakthrough occurred this season at New Hampshire's Rockingham Park where two very attractive young ladies can be seen leading and bringing up the rear of the post parade. As outriders they are there on business and not for decorative purposes.

Their job is to help control would be runaway horses and to run down and catch a loose horse should the jockey be unseated. They also are on duty during the morning workout hours.

The TRA, incidentally, is working on a weekly half-hour television program. Racing, except for the triple crown events, hasn't been on the tube much in recent years.

"Thoroughbred racing has a great story to tell and with its continued growth it is a story that needs to be widely told," said John Bresnahan, the TRA's new chief administrative officer. "It may take a bit of time but I am convinced that we can put together a program of interest not alone to the racing fan but to anyone who enjoys the color and excitement of a sport that predates any of today's spectator sports."

A condensed 45 minute program showing the daily race card at the Fairgrounds, incidentally, will be shown at 9:30 p.m. nightly on Cable Channel 9 through the week and at 5:30 p.m. on Sundays.

First Crack Appears In NFL Players' Wall

By Associated Press

The first crack—more like a fissure, actually—has appeared in the wall of striking National Football League veterans. A break may be imminent, too, in the deadlocked contract talks.

While most NFL teams had to be content with perhaps one or two veterans appearing at camp along with the usual flood of rookies and free agents, the Cincinnati Bengals enjoyed a windfall when a dozen vets, including quarterback Greg Cook, tight end Bob Trumpy and linebacker Al Beauchamp, showed up Sunday at Wilmington, Ohio.

On Monday, though, Cook reversed his field and walked out of camp, leaving the Bengals with 11 veterans. It still was the largest contingent of nonstrikers, and Beauchamp thinks more may be on the way.

"I think a lot of the guys are behind the strike because they only want two weeks of practice and don't want to play as many exhibition games," he said.

"Cincinnati is our No. 1 competition," Pittsburgh vice president Dan Rooney observed from the Steelers' Latrobe, Pa., camp, "and since some of their veterans are showing up, maybe some of our guys will consider this and decide to report."

Preston Pearson, the Steelers' player representative, admitted he was surprised at the Bengals' defection.

"I didn't think there'd be 12 guys in the entire league who would cross the picket lines," he said.

In Houston, meanwhile, Bill Curry, president of the NFL Players Association, said he believes "both sides now are ready to sit down and discuss the issues. . . I think we would be foolish if we couldn't sit down and settle this before the regular season starts."

Then, for the first time since the strike began July 1, Curry mentioned what might be considered a timetable.

"If we can't reach an agreement in six to eight weeks, there's something seriously wrong," Curry said, adding he would have his negotiating team "on 24-hour call to start talking."

Cook's walkout appeared to be the result of his own problems, rather than because of the strike.

He was an outstanding rookie five years ago, but was sidelined with shoulder injuries that required three major operations. They kept him out of three complete seasons and all but one of last year's games.

The Bengals said Cook slipped a note under the door of assistant coach Bill Walsh, which said:

"Dear Bill, no explanation for my leaving. I just can't do it anymore. Give my reasoning to (Head Coach and General Manager) Paul (Brown) and my apologies."

The only other camp with more than a trickle of vets on hand belonged to the Houston Oilers, with 10, including linebackers Steve Kiner, Gregg Bingham and Ted Washington.

At Carlisle, Pa., the Washington Redskins' camp, Roy Jefferson and Brig Owens met with rookies and tried to convince them not to play any exhibition games, including a rookie scrimmage Friday night, which the Redskin vets plan to picket.

Dodgers, Reds Top NL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The runaway Los Angeles Dodgers and their closest western division pursuers, the Cincinnati Reds, were the heavy winners Monday in the final National League all star voting with three players apiece being named to the squad, while a late ballot box-stuffing effort from Philadelphia elected shortstop Larry Bowa for the Phillies but fell short on third baseman Mike Schmidt.

In the final tally for the 41st annual midsummer classic at Pittsburgh July 23, the Dodgers placed third baseman Ron Cey, write-in candidate Steve Garvey at first base and outfielder Jimmy Wynn on the starting team, while the Reds countered with catcher Johnny Bench, second baseman Joe Morgan and outfielder Pete Rose.

The biggest individual support did not, of course, go to a Dodger or Red but rather to Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time homer king who pulled down 2,636,250 votes—an all-time high since the fans took over the selecting in 1970.

Johnny Bench

While the heavy support for the Dodgers and Reds was not unexpected, most of the last-minute attention focused on Philadelphia, where the Phillie fans, finding themselves in the unfamiliar role of pennant contenders, staged a massive eleventh hour drive to get Bowa and Schmidt elected.

They half succeeded as Bowa, who had trailed the Dodgers' Bill Russell all season long in the shortstop balloting, won out in the final tally, 1,570,033 to 1,085,494.

Sex Guidelines Termed Vague

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Educators and athletic administrators gathered here Monday to hear a briefing on the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's regulations on sex discrimination at all levels of education, including athletics.

They left as confused, if not more so, than when they arrived as Gwen Gregory of HEW's Civil Rights office, tried to explain the guidelines, most of which are vague.

They learned one thing that is a certainty: If a school, whether it be pre-school, vocational, public, undergraduate or graduate, receives federal funding it must comply with the proposed regulations or lose the funds.

Ms. Gregory called it a "revolutionary piece of legislation" and the educators and athletic leaders, judging from their questions and apparent disgust with the answers, agreed with her assessment.

Most controversial of the interpretations, one which concerns collegiate leaders, is what even if athletic funds are not derived from federally assisted money the HEW considers the athletic programs "an extension of the educational program receiving federal assistance."

HEW officials are holding 12 public meetings across the country to receive "input" before the program is effective, but Ms. Gregory advised, "a wise administrator would take action right now on a voluntary basis and there'd be less chance of having the 'feds' on his neck."

One of the proposed regulations would forbid physical education classes to be segregated by sex.

The regulation would be a costly one for schools to implement because of the necessity of more facilities and more teachers. There is no provision in HEW to provide the needed money. Where it will come from is what most worries educators.

Ms. Gregory had no answers for that. However it might be accomplished, HEW is demanding a "comparable" number of scholarships for each sex when overall athletic participation is equal.

Schmidt, who has been batting well over .300 all season long and is also among the league's home run and RBI leaders with 18 and 62 respectively as of Sunday night, was a write-in candidate at third base and almost overtook the Dodgers' Cey in the final week, falling short 1,593,329 to 1,476,447.

A third Phillie, second baseman Dave Cash, on whom much of the credit for the club's rise this season has been placed, also made a strong rally for first team status but missed out to the Reds' Morgan, 2,153,061 to 1,693,389.

Bench, who was second high to Aaron in total votes with 2,628,465, beat out the Phillies' Bob Boone but another Cincinnati slugger, Tony Perez, fell victim to a heavy late write-in campaign for the Dodgers' Garvey, who was second in the NL in RBIs with 65 as of Sunday.

Wynn, league leader in homers with 20, third in RBIs with 63, finished third behind Aaron and Rose among the outfielders, but easily outdistanced Reggie

Hank Aaron

Smith of the Cardinals by over 400,000 votes.

A mild surprise in the final voting was the omission of Houston Astros outfielder Cesar Cedeño. Despite a league-leading 73 runs batted in and 19 homers, Cedeño, who last winter was involved in a manslaughter case, finished a distant fifth in the outfielder balloting.

For the 40-year old Aaron, it was the 20th time being named as a starter on the squad. Bench will be making his fifth start, while the other repeaters from last year's squad, his Cincinnati teammates Rose and Morgan, will be making their fourth appearance as starters.

Durousseau To Appeal Conviction

Omaha (UPI) — The Nebraska Racing Commission Monday found jockey L. J. Durousseau guilty of possession of an electrical device on the Ak-Sar-Ben track here May 9.

The commission ruled that Durousseau be denied a jockey license in Nebraska through the 1976 racing season. His attorney said he planned to appeal the decision.

Durousseau returned to riding in Nebraska in June, 1973, on a probationary license following a suspension in California, also for possession of an electrical device, commonly called a "battery."

The Ak-Sar-Ben Board of Stewards had suspended Durousseau May 10 for the duration of the Ak-Sar-Ben race meeting which ended Saturday.

However, Durousseau obtained an injunction in Douglas County District Court which permitted him to continue riding at Ak-Sar-Ben.

No-Hitter Eludes Rookie As Orioles Fall To A's

By The Associated Press

Rookie pitcher Wayne Garland of the Baltimore Orioles will not soon forget the ninth inning of Monday night's game against the Oakland A's.

For eight innings, Garland set the world champion A's down without a hit. But in the ninth, Oakland's Dick Green cracked a leadoff single, then the A's broke loose for five runs and a 6-4 victory.

Garland, a 23-year-old right-hander making only his third major league start, stopped the A's on three walks and one unearned run until the ninth when Green, reinstated from the disabled list earlier Monday, broke up the no-hit bid with a single to right.

Pinch hitter Jesus Alou lined out to center, but Baltimore first baseman Enos Cabell booted Bill North's grounder for an error.

Garland, apparently un-nerved, then gave up a single to Bert Campaneris, loading the bases, and a two-run double to Sal Bando, making the score 4-3.

Grant Jackson relieved Garland, but Oakland's Reggie Jackson drilled his first pitch for an RBI double, tying the score.

After Joe Rudi was intentionally walked, pinch hitter Tim Hosley greeted relief pitcher Bob Reynolds with a sacrifice fly for the winning run. A wild pitch let in the final run.

The game-winner was Hosley's first run batted in of the season and handed Garland his second defeat in five decisions.

Elsewhere in the American League, Nolan Ryan broke a personal three-game losing streak, hurling the California Angels to a 4-2 decision over the Cleveland Indians. Ryan, 11-9, didn't give up a hit until Frank Duffy's two-out single in the fifth inning, then needed ninth-inning relief from Luis Quintana and Dave Sells to preserve the victory.

George Brett's two-run double highlighted a three-run second inning that carried the Kansas City Royals to a 3-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Ken Henderson homered with one out in the ninth inning, lifting the Chicago White Sox to a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Henderson's 11th homer of the season came off Tiger starter Lerrin LaGrow.

Steve Brye's run-scoring single in the ninth inning, following a single by Luis Gomez and a double by Glenn Borgmann, gave the Minnesota Twins a 4-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

In National League action, Dock Ellis scattered eight hits in pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 decision over Houston, halting the Astros' winning streak at six games. It was Ellis' first victory since June 14.

The Cincinnati Reds' Clay Kirby scattered nine hits, blanking the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0. The Reds have won nine of their last 11 games, while St. Louis has lost nine of 10 and has scored just one run in its last three games.

The Chicago Cubs rallied for four runs in the ninth inning, two of them scoring on a single by Andre Thornton, and beat the Atlanta Braves 7-3. A bases-loaded walk to Billy Williams in the ninth broke a 3-3 tie, then Thornton's base hit clinched it.

Raiders' Veteran Otto May Cross Picket Line

By MILTON RICHMAN

UPI Sports Editor

New York (UPI) — So far, it's a scoreless tie between the NFL players and owners. Up to now, each side has managed the same yardage — minus nothing. Meanwhile, time keeps moving.

In less than three weeks, pre-season games are due to start. Despite the picket lines, some teams have opened camp already and more will follow this week.

The Oakland Raiders opened camp for their rookies at Santa Rosa, Calif., last Thursday and Tuesday the veterans are due in.

That means Jim Otto, too, and there is more than the usual curiosity about the 35-year-old Oakland center's feelings on this strike because he hasn't missed a game going on 15 years now, he has been an all-pro 13 years and, along with everything else, he's generally regarded one of the grand old men of professional football.

There is no question about Jim Otto's love for the game. Similarly, there is no question over the way he feels about his fellow players and the Oakland organization.

He has an intense loyalty and deep special affection for both. Much as he'd prefer not to, Oakland's 6-foot-2, 255-pound offensive captain is being asked now to align himself with one side or the other.

Jim Otto had a long talk with me about the strike from his home in Fremont, Calif., and although he didn't say whether he will or won't cross the picket line Tuesday, he did say some other things which clearly show the way he's leaning.

"It seems to me," said Jim Otto, "this strike is centered around all the freedom issues. To me, personally, the freedom issues aren't that big. If we didn't have freedom already, we wouldn't be doing what we're doing now."

"We really have no problems in Oakland as a team. A lot of teams have complaints; we don't have any. Many of us have businesses and fine homes. This is due to the growth of our team and support of our fans."

"I was here from the start. I watched our team grow and I'm pretty proud of it and the city of Oakland. I feel we have the finest organization in professional football."

"Tom Novak and Bill Slaughter hit home runs for Falstaff, while Wayne Fleming had a solo homer for Meginnis."

"We have the winningest record in professional football and that's something which can only be accomplished when you have a fine organization and fine athletes."

"I think we have a great pension plan," Otto went on. "All our salaries have gone up. When I signed in 1960, I received $7,000. My salary has grown considerably. We have some fine insurance benefits, life insurance, major medical and so on."

"We achieved those goals by 1970 — prior to Ed Garvey (executive director of the NFL Players' Association). With this strike, possibly we might throw a lot of these things away and blow it.

Jim Otto

"In the last strike four years ago, many of our players wanted to go to camp, but Al Davis and coach (John) Madden wanted us to more or less stay together as a team."

"They asked us to stay out of camp and do the thing as a team. At the time I thought we had some legitimate gripes. The biggest one was upgrading our pension. At the time I had committed myself to staying out."

"I don't know what the feelings of Al Davis and coach Madden are now, but I'm paid to play football and not picket and I will do what my organization wants me to do when the time comes."

Jim Otto believes if the Players Association wants to do something really constructive it should have NFL owners press their legislators to introduce a bill whereby professional football players could get added consideration from the Internal Revenue Service.

"Why doesn't the IRS allow us to depreciate our bodies over a period of years so that we can keep some more of the money we make?" Otto asked.

"The football owners are all millionaires. They contribute to various political campaigns and get favors for their construction companies and what not. Why can't they get favors for us athletes?"

"Now if the players were striking for something like that, it would make more sense. But I don't see, for example, why we need somebody to sit down with us and help us bargain."

"We're professionals. We have college degrees and I think we should be able to bargain for ourselves. Unions are for non-professionals."

What about those players who might come back and say, sure, it's okay for somebody like Jim Otto to say all this because of all the money he's making with Oakland?

"The guys who'd say that probably would be making more money than I do," replied the Raiders' veteran center. "I don't make that much."

"The reason I'm saying these things is for the younger players, and for their future. Professional football is a great game. I love it. I don't want to see it ruined."

Lyle 22 Pounds Heavier Than Ellis At Weighin

DENVER (AP) — Ron Lyle weighed in 22 pounds heavier than Jimmy Ellis Monday for their Tuesday night heavyweight bout crucial for both if they are to move up in the rankings.

"He'll only go seven rounds. Jimmy will put him down," said Angelo Dundee, Ellis' manager.

"I never make fight predictions," Lyle said, cutting short the pre-fight verbal sparring.

Lyle, 27-1-1 including 19 knockouts, was jovial at the weigh-in where he tipped the scales at 215½. "I feel good. I know how to handle myself, it's going to be a good fight," he said.

Ellis is 39-9-1 with 23 knockouts. Despite being lighter than Lyle, Ellis said he had been training hard for eight weeks dropping his weight to 193½ from 210.

"I feel the best I ever have, it's going to be a hard fight," Ellis said. "Yes, I think seven rounds will be enough."

Lyle is ranked fifth by the World Boxing Association and third by the World Boxing Council. Ellis is eighth in the WBA and seventh in the WBC.

Lyle's hopes of a title fight or a better ranking paled 17 months ago in a loss to Jerry Quarry. He said he would not change his fighting style for Ellis.

Lyle is regarded as a slow starter. His trainer, Chickie Ferrara, had predicted Lyle would be a changed fighter for the 12-round bout here.

"I'm not really changing, I just do my thing," Lyle said Monday.

Ellis owned the heavyweight title for nearly two years until he was knocked out in 1970 by Joe Frazier. He's been trying for a comeback during the past two years and has won 10 of his last 13 fights.

NCAA, Big 8 Accused Of Anti-Trust Violations

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The NCAA and Big Eight Conference were accused of anti-trust violations Monday in a federal court suit seeking to overturn a ban on University of Oklahoma football telecasts.

The suits were filed by attorneys for the newly organized Oklahoma Television Sports Inc.

The suit alleges the ban is an unlawful restraint of trade in violation of both federal and state anti-trust laws.

There had been previous unsuccessful court challenges to the right of the Big Eight and NCAA to impose sanctions for recruiting violations, but this is the first challenge to the television ban on anti-trust grounds.

The suit was filed on behalf of Oklahoma Television Sports Inc. by Robert H. Mitchell, former assistant state attorney general, and Frank Gregory, a former trial attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, who also has been anti-trust counsel for a number of major oil companies.

The petition said the new organization tried to open negotiations with the University of Oklahoma for the right to televise football games, but the university refused to negotiate because of the NCAA and Big Eight ban.

A letter from OU Vice President Dr. John A. Morris to Mitchell was attached to the petition. Morris called the television ban "a closed issue," and said the university could not enter negotiations for televising football games during the 1974 and 1975 seasons because of the sanctions.

The university is not a party to the suit and was not named as defendant.

State Youths Eye Tournament

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP)—Five Nebraska youths qualified here Monday for national competition in The National Association of Insurance Agents golf tournament in Cranston, R. I., August 11-15.

David Donachie led the five qualifiers with a 146 over the 36-hole qualifying event.

Following Donachie were Tony Pesavento, Omaha, 148; Scott Lawson, Lincoln, 149; Bill Henderson, Scottsbluff, 150; and Jeff Morris, Columbus, 150.

Reeling Royals Tumble Again

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Indianapolis got its sixth straight victory Monday night with a two-run ninth inning rally to defeat Omaha, 4-3.

The Royals meanwhile, suffered their seventh straight setback and 21st defeat in the last 23 games.

Indianapolis third baseman Jim Driscoll opened the ninth with a triple to right off reliever Pete Duncan. Gene Dusan followed with a slow bouncer fielded by second baseman Buddy Hunter. Driscoll bolted for home, stopped, then again dashed for the plate. Hunter's throw was late.

Omaha catcher Tom Harmon, angered by the call, was ejected from the game.

Pat Darcy, running for Dusan, went to second on a two-out single by Ed Armbrister and scored on a line single to center by Junior Kennedy.

Dan Osborn, 3-1, gained the victory with three perfect innings of relief.

Reliever Pete Duncan lost his second against one victory.

Cougars' Sale Reportedly Set

MEMPHIS (AP)—The sale of the Carolina Cougars to a St. Louis group is expected to be announced Wednesday at a meeting of the American Basketball Association in New York, the Memphis Press-Scimitar reported Monday.

Reportedly, the new St. Louis franchise also would announce the signing of Marvin Barnes, the All-American center from Providence.

'Team Canada '74 Spectator Easy Job' Harris

CALGARY (AP) — Coach Billy Harris says handling team Canada '74 is likely to be the easiest assignment he has ever had.

Harris, 38, will lead the Canadians against the Soviet Union this fall in the second international hockey series between the nations. He predicts his team will have an easier time in the eight-game series than Team Canada '72.

"We'll have Bobby Hull, who leads by example, and Gordie Howe, who's a leader in everything he does," Harris said Monday. "We'll have Pat Stapleton, who has experience playing the defensive style necessary to beat the Russians.

"And we'll have Paul Henderson. All we have to do is stay close until the final minute or so and Henderson will win for us. That's what he did in 1972, remember?"

Henderson, Stapleton and Frank Mahovlich—if he joins the team—will be the only veterans of Team Canada '72, which beat the Russians four games to three with one game tied.

"We'll have to play a defensive game, handling the puck well and not trying to beat the Russians physically," said Harris.

LEHIGH, Iowa (AP) — A 43-year-old man waiting to watch his teen-aged son play in a baseball game was killed Monday when a ball struck him on the head.

Dick M. Johnson of Lehigh was pronounced dead on arrival at a Fort Dodge hospital where he was taken after the accident.

The game was between Dayton and Lehigh, a central Iowa town of 750 persons.

"They were just starting to warm up," said Lehigh Police Chief Don Elick. "This was a summer program for high school baseball kids and Mr. Johnson's son, Dennis, 17, was playing in it."

Two Dayton players were throwing a baseball on the sideline when it glanced off the glove of one of the youths and struck Johnson on the temple, Elick said. Johnson had been sitting in a chair near the sidelines.

Sports Notes

The Oakland Raiders acquired speedster Richmond Flowers from the New York Giants to be used on special teams.

Secretariat, Damacus, Dark Mirage, trainer Charlie Whittingham and ex-jockey Conn McCreary have been added to Racing's Hall of Fame.

Running back Ike Brown flunked his New England Patriots physical and probably won't be able to play football this season.

The Philadelphia Phillies signed 14-year-old Jorge Lebron of Patillas, P.R., to a contract.

Hall of Fame pitcher Dizzy Dean is confined to St. Mary's Hospital in Reno, Nev., for treatment of an apparent heart attack suffered shortly after he was released from a South Lake Tahoe, Calif., hospital and was trying to return home to Wiggins, Miss.

Veteran Boston Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant was named the American League's player of the week for July 8-14.

Quarterback Greg Cook left the Cincinnati Bengals training camp after trying to make another comeback since he has been sidelined with shoulder injuries.

LT&T Says Phone Industry In Entirely New Rate Era

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. (LT&T) told the Nebraska Public Service Commission Monday that the telephone industry has entered "an entirely new era in rate regulation" which dictates a substantial increase in allowed earnings.

Citing inflation, climbing interest rates and competition for the investor's dollar, three LT&T executives asked the commission to raise the ceiling on the firm's rate of return on total capital.

Houghton Furr, vice president-treasurer, told the commission current conditions indicate LT&T will be requiring a 10% rate of return on capital in "the next year or two."

"Need Better Earnings"

Furr said: "We need better earnings now — for internal generation of construction funds, for improved 'times-interest-earned' ratios to protect our ability to sell bonds and to provide dividends and per-share earnings so we will be able to sell additional stock at favorable prices."

In 1970, the commission set LT&T's maximum rate of return at 7.75%. The firm's 1973 earnings totaled 8.3%, which prompted the commission to issue a show cause order to explain the apparent excess earnings. If the commission determines the earnings are unwarranted, it can order refunds to subscribers or rate adjustments.

Emergency Services Plan Studied

Omaha (AP) — Officials of Immanuel Medical Center announced Monday that they are working with the Creighton University Medical School in an effort to develop a plan to make emergency services available on generated funds to finance new construction.

Furr said it would be unwise and difficult to raise funds through issuance of common stock because LT&T is selling below book value.

$43 High Reached

Furr said book value on LT&T stock is $27.40, but is now selling for $24.50, down from a 1966 high of $43.

"This has made it necessary for many utility companies, including most telephone companies, to sell preferred stock during 1973, although this is an expensive method and inevitably dilutes earnings per share of common stock," he said.

And Furr said as utilities go deeper into debt, their bonds have been downgraded. That, he said, increases the cost to the utility and ultimately the ratepayers. He said Standard and Poor's has downgraded 54 utilities while upgrading only five in the past five years.

Geist said, "Therefore, it is essential that LT&T's earnings are such that our long term debt issues will be attractive to the investors at the lowest possible cost to the company and ultimately to our consumers."

Fill Study Grant Given

Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — The Old West Regional Commission Monday announced approval of a grant of $80,000 for the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology.

The money will be used to study the potential of strip mining fill as underground water storage areas.

The grant was announced by the commission's co-chairman, Warren Wood, and the state co-chairman, Gov. Richard Kneip.

The money is part of a $2 million appropriation to assist commission states in absorbing the impact of increasing coal development.

The grant will fund a two-year study on water storage and flow capabilities of land-fill in mined-out excavations in the Powder River Basin of eastern Wyoming.

The Old West Regional Commission is made up of Nebraska, the Dakotas, Wyoming and Montana.

Wounded Knee Defense Asks Acquittal

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Immediately after the Wounded Knee non-leadership trial prosecution rested its case Monday, defense attorneys asked that their clients be acquitted on the ground the government did not prove its case.

Gregorio Jaramillo, 22, of Denver, Colo., and Michael Eugene Sturdevant, 30, of Neopit, Wis., are charged with acting or attempting to act to obstruct or impede federal officers during a civil disorder.

According to testimony in court Jaramillo and Sturdevant were arrested as they neared a perimeter established by roadblocks around Wounded Knee. Subsequent searches disclosed they were carrying ammunition, among other articles.

As the government attempted to establish the existence of civil disorder, government witnesses testified that weapons were fired in Wounded Knee, that mail was not delivered to the village and that occupants of the village were held hostage for several days.

In oral arguments before U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom, defense attorneys argued that the government has not proved that Jaramillo and Sturdevant had impeded or obstructed federal agents and proved the issuance of subpoenas for Pentagon and Department of Justice officials.

Urbom said the witnesses were being called for testimony relating to whether law enforcement officials involved in the case were acting in the lawful performance of their lawful duties.

Many of the witnesses are among those whom defense attorneys attempted to subpoena last week, along with Richard Kleindienst and Elliot Richardson.

In requesting those subpoenas defense attorneys had argued that prosecution should not be sustained in the light of massive military intervention, which allegedly constituted gross governmental misconduct.

Discussion at an 8 p.m. Wilderness Park Preservation Committee meeting Tuesday will center around an application for membership on the Citizen's Highway Advisory Board and progress on a petition drive against a West Lincoln by-pass through the park. The meeting is in the home of David Hibler near Wilderness Park.

Douglas County Board of Commissioners has threatened legal action to restore the services.

Lloyd M. Peterson, Immanuel board chairman, said initial discussions are being held to plan emergency services that would augment the primary care now offered at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Peterson said the talks would take several days, and that he hoped to be able to announce something "concrete" within one week.

Human Services Dept. OKd

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Councilman Max Denney helped dig the human services proposal out of the quagmire Monday when he joined three other lawmakers in approving a scaled down version of the hotly debated plan.

Signing of the proposed agreement creating a joint human services department with the county bogged down last week in a disagreement over the financing and the creation of the department itself.

The modified plan adopted by four lawmakers Monday deletes the department and calls for the appointment of a coordinator instead.

The revised version also calls for the city to join the county in appointing the coordinator.

Even Split On Costs
And the amended document calls for a 50%-50% split in costs.

Last week Denney joined councilmen Steve Cook, Dick Baker and Bob Sikyta in calling for a 100% county funding of the department. He joined council members Sue Bailey, Helen Boosalis and John Robinson Monday.

Denney said he switched sides because one of his major objections to the original agreement was the creation of a new department, which he thought could lead to a new bureaucratic structure in local government.

The freshman councilman also favored the joint appointment of a coordinator. The original agreement called for the county to appoint the director, subject to the council's confirmation.

Cook again called for the hiring of a consultant to define human services and to outline how a new department would operate.

Denney Shifts View

Denney, who has been a constant consultant critic, made a surprise statement, saying, "I was wrong when I said I would always be opposed to consultants."

He said he would vote to hire a consultant to study human services and said he did not see the hiring of a coordinator as precluding the hiring of some outside help.

Sikyta said he could not approve an agreement until a detailed budget was laid out, adding the whole issue still is confused because "I don't even know what the word 'human services' really covers."

A tentative budget drawn up after last week's squabble on human services among the lawmakers, county commissioners and the mayor calls for a $47,000 annual expenditure. Of that amount, $25,000 is for the coordinator's salary and $10,000 would be set aside for consultant services.

No formal action was taken on the budget.

'Unbelievably Complicated'

In lobbying the reluctant councilmen to agree to some type of human services plan, Bailey admitted the issue has been "unbelievably complicated."

But, she said, the lawmakers should not let budgetary and financing issues overshadow "the real issue. The city cannot ignore its role in delivering human services."

Appearing in favor of the proposal were Judy Songer, chairman of the Open Door Health Center Board, Joan Wooten, and Jesse Payne, director of the Lincoln Action Program.

The modified plan now goes to county commissioners for consideration.

Big Steam Heat Rate Hike OKd

The City Council Monday authorized a 55.2% rate hike to downtown steam-heat customers in an effort to recover some of the Lincoln Electric System's (LES) losses to run the K St. power plant.

The large rate hike will go into effect this fall, raising heating costs to an anticipated 83 customers.

LES Administrator Walt Canney reported that the system will lose $102,371 during 1974-75 with the increase. Without the increase, LES would go in the hole by $319,368.

The K St. plant has been operating in the red for years, despite several major rate hikes, including a 67.5% increase approved by the county a year and a half ago.

Why Not Deficit Free?
Councilman Max Denney questioned why the LES Administrative Board did not recommend a rate schedule which would pay all the plant's operating costs.

Canney answered that the system may cut down maintenance costs at the plant during the year and that fuel prices may level off.

"We didn't want to overcharge," he said.

LES announced plans to discontinue steam heat by May of 1976, assuming the Environmental Protection Agency grants another six-month variance permit to allow the continued burning of coal at the plant.

Lot Request Denied
In other business the council unanimously denied ABC Electric Co.'s request for a special permit to continue operating two parking lots in the Clinton neighborhood. The firm has been illegally operating the lots, which are being used for truck and employee parking. The lots are located at 25th and 26th and Y.

Opposition to the continued operation of the lots was registered by Bea Richmond, representing the Clinton Neighborhood Association.

The council also received a letter recommending denial of the permit from Community Development Director Leo Scherer who said the parking is "an undesirable condition, is unsightly and is not conducive to the sound development of a residential-oriented neighborhood."

Both Planning Director Doug Brogden and the Planning Commission have recommended denial.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said it would be up to the City Building Inspections Division to initiate action to stop the illegal use of the property.

Bus Fare Subsidy

The lawmakers also authorized the expenditure of $25,000 out of revenue sharing funds to continue subsidizing bus fares for the elderly for the remainder of the calendar year.

The lawmakers also unsuccessfully attempted to override Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf's veto of a zoning change from B Two Family to C Multiple at 40th and N.

The vote was 4-3 to override the veto. Five votes are needed. Council members Steve Cook, Max Denney, John Robinson and Bob Sikyta voted to override, while Sue Bailey, Boosalis and Dick Baker voted against that move.

The lawmakers also approved several of the mayor's appointments to boards, but held off action one week on the mayor's 15 appointments to the Charter Revision Commission.

Officially Created
Earlier this year the council officially created the commission and provided that the mayor shall make all

"reasonable attempt" to obtain an economic, social and geographic representation on the board.

Schwartzkopf's assistant Mike Merick told the lawmakers that the mayor took those items into consideration when he made his appointments.

Denney said, "I'm willing to take his word for it."

Robinson added, "I'm willing to take another look into it."

The council delayed action a week in order to give the mayor's staff time to prepare a map showing the appointees' residences.

Appointments Listed

Appointed to the commission by the mayor were:

Breta Dow, Norm Krivosha, Laurence Tyler and Dr. Kenneth Holland for four-year terms.

Bob Danielson, Bob Sittig, Karl Dickinson and Jeanne Thorough Kelley for three-year terms.

Ray Frohn, Erv Peterson, Bill Smith and Fran Minard for two-year terms.

Lloyd Worley, Robert Blairst and Dorothy Maxcy for one year terms.

The lawmakers did approve the mayor's appointment of Larry Hart to the Personnel Board, replacing Dennis Fetting, for a term expiring in 1979.

The council approved the appointment of Gaylord Cole and Michael Gaughan and the reappointment of John Hoppe to the Pershing Auditorium Board, for terms expiring in 1980.

In further action the council:

Gun Lobbyist Dies Of Gunshots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Louis A. Sisler, a lobbyist for the National Rifle Association, has died of gunshot wounds inflicted by persons who claimed to be looking for a young rapist, police said.

Police gave this account of the incident:

Sisler, 48, answered the door of his father-in-law's three-story brick home about 11 p.m. Saturday.

"We're looking for the guy who raped our sister," one member of the group of six persons told Sisler.

"I'm sorry, you must have the wrong house," Sisler replied.

But when he tried to close the door, the assailants fired several shots through the screen door. One, a shotgun blast, tore a hole several inches wide in the wooden door.

"It was absolute, wanton murder," declared S.P. Haines, Sisler's father-in-law, who said Sisler told him about what happened before he died.

Haines said that after being shot, Sisler staggered across the room and telephoned police for help. Sisler died early Sunday from internal bleeding and multiple gunshot wounds.

Police arrested Mary Harris, 55, and Alphonso Stoddard, 27, early Monday. Both were charged with homicide. Police are seeking at least four other persons.

Trapped Convicts Give Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two armed convicts who held seven hostages in a cellblock for three days surrendered meekly Monday night, ending a 105-hour reign of terror at the U.S. District Courthouse.

Frank Gorham Jr., 26, and Robert Jones, 24, were driven to nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md., and put aboard a two-engine government jet for a flight to a federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said the men, who at first bargained for a flight to freedom in Africa, would be placed in maximum security detention.

The surrender came after the men chopped their way into an air vent with axes in an attempt to escape from the basement cellblock.

Russell said they were forced back into an enclosed area next to the cellblock after an exchange of gunfire and a burst of tear gas.

They surrendered to Deputy District of Columbia Police Chief Maurice Cullinane, part of a combined force of police and U.S. marshals who took possession of the cellblock.

Cullinane said he persuaded the men they would not be shot if they came out.

"I was just talking to them through the door," he said. "Just tapping with them."

Women Might Be Hurt By Rules

Omaha (AP) — Implementation of new federal sex discrimination rules actually would hurt women's participation in athletics, several educators said Monday afternoon at a regional public meeting to discuss the proposed regulations.

Earlier, Gwen Gregory, an official from the civil rights office of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), told a press conference that the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, or any college, could be required to give as many athletic scholarships to women as men receive.

Ms. Gregory, who prefers to be addressed, described the proposed rules, which prohibit sex discrimination in education at any schools that receive federal funding, as "revolutionary."

The regulations were written by HEW to implement Title IX, an anti sex discrimination law passed by Congress in 1972. Omaha was the site Monday of one of 12 public meetings being held around the country.

The educators virtually ignored admissions, housing and employment provisions during a two-hour question-answer session and zeroed in on athletics.

Ms. Gregory explained that Title IX would require a school to give a comparable number of scholarships to each sex when numbers of students participating are similar. This does not mean a school must spend like dollar amounts on each sex, she said, but it does mean equal opportunities for women to participate. Women must have comparable training facilities, coaching and equipment.

Ms. Gregory said Title IX could require a university to form women's intercollegiate athletic teams, if enough women demanded it.

But only in the area of "competitive" athletics is the "separate but equal doctrine" allowed, she said. In all other educational areas and classes, including physical education and most intramurals, the sexes must participate together. Only sex education classes are exempt.

Educators suggested that if women are required to compete with men on "non-competitive" intramural teams, it would seriously diminish their participation in sports. Others said their schools already had integrated intramural teams and the girls were asking to go back to girls-only teams.

Russ Baldwin, acting athletic director at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, said the proposal would be extremely costly to implement.

Dan Offenberger, head of the physical education department at Creighton University, suggested that large-scale intercollegiate competition for women would bring the unwanted temptations of illegal recruiting, too many scholarships and professionalism.

"I don't think that's where women want to go," he said.

Questioned repeatedly about intramurals and mixed physical education classes, Ms. Gregory suggested critics offer comment to HEW in Washington.

"I've given you our rationale. It could be wrong."

If adopted, the new guidelines also would end what HEW calls discriminatory classes like shop for boys and home economics for girls.

A college could be required to end assistance to fraternities and sororities, as well as any all-male or all-female organizations.
